

Nearly 400 Facing Trial In 4 Western Rum Rebellions

LIQUOR RINGS BEING BROKEN BY U. S. AGENTS

Drive Begun by Federal Officers in Idaho, Wyoming, Oklahoma and Texas

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Almost 400 persons, including many public officials, today were under federal indictment for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws in four states. Alleged liquor rings in Idaho, Wyoming, Oklahoma and Texas were objects of the governmental drive.

Trial of 302 persons accused of conspiracy was to be started today in federal district court in Oklahoma City, while trial of 23, including former State Law Enforcement Commissioner W. C. Irving, was continued in Cheyenne yesterday and former Governor Henry S. Johnston was subpoenaed to testify in the Oklahoma City case.

OFFICERS INCLUDED
A federal grand jury in Galveston, Tex., indicted yesterday after indicting about 120 residents of south Texas in several liquor conspiracy cases. Its last act was indictment of a Galveston group which included a former coast guardman and two policemen.

Local governments of the city of Mullan and Shoshone-co, Idaho, were disrupted by conviction recently of virtually all principal office holders on liquor conspiracy charges and the same fate faces Wallace, Idaho. Forty-four of approximately 290 persons indicted in northern Idaho, including the mayor of Wallace, the Shoshone-co sheriff and city councilmen and police, are to be tried in March.

Forty-two persons convicted in the last term of federal court at Cour d'Alene, Idaho, which included on Mullan "rebellion" conspirators and 65 who pleaded guilty, were given fines totaling $18,800 and prison sentences aggregating 29 years.

KEMP TO BE TRIED ON BRIBERY CHARGE

Trial Is Scheduled for Municipal Court Thursday Morning

Trial of Lothar Kemp, a deputy sheriff, on a charge of taking a bribe of $50 from Henry Van Camp, town of Grand Chute, is scheduled for Thursday morning.

Kemp is accused of having taken a part of a bribe from Van Camp for protection of a still operated by Van Camp. Dan Kelly, a former turnkey at the county jail, faces a similar charge in the same case but the attorney general has ruled that Kelly cannot be prosecuted on the charge because he testified regarding the matter at the hearing of the ouster case against Sheriff Fred W. Giese.

Kelly's case is set for trial Friday morning and some action probably will be taken at that time by District Attorney Stanley A. Staidl to dispose of the case. Kelly also faces a charge of attempted larceny of the Traas grocery on E. College-ave. last November. This case also is set for trial Friday morning.

Both Kelly and Kemp were arrested on the same charge on a single warrant but Kemp's case was separated from that of Kelly's on motion of Kemp's attorney.

ENGINEER LOSES SPECTACLES AND TRAIN IS DELAYED

Moberly, Mo.—(P)—Loss of a pair of spectacles caused loss of a train for more than a half hour yesterday on the Wabash railroad between Pattonsburg and Jameson, Mo.

The specs were those of Engineer W. D. McGinnis, which made them important. McGinnis can't see so well without his glasses and when they dropped off while he was leaning out of a car window he promptly threw his fast passenger train into reverse and returned to recover his "eyes."

Members of the crew came to McGinnis' aid and, as time passed, impatient passengers joined the search.

Halfroad officials became worried about their "lost" train and dispatched employees to search for it.

The search was futile but McGinnis saved a general alarm by deciding to leave his spectacles for another day. He took his train into the next station 35 minutes late.

RARE BOOKS ARE ON EXHIBIT HERE AT COLLEGE LIBRARY

Works Represent Best from Private Collection of Lawrence Trustee

Rare books, the choicest of a private collection owned by a trustee of Lawrence college, are on exhibit in the college library. Included in the exhibit are old world publications dating back to the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. "Epitome of all Knowledge," published in 1541, contains a wealth of interesting engraved diagrams and charts setting forth the subjects of morals, grammar, logic, rhetoric and every branch of learning deemed important in that day. The book is unusually well preserved in its morocco binding, despite its age of nearly five centuries.

One of the most interesting books in the prized collection contains a series of illustrations portraying the different events of the Revolutionary war. What little text there is appears in French, under the title "Recueil d'estampes Representant Evenemens de la Guerre qui a procure l'Independence aux Etats Unis de l'Amerique."

The seventeenth century conception of the world is fully described in detail in a book of German publication bearing the date 1673. This is a fascinating story of what people of that year imagined the Americas to be. Maps and pictures scattered profusely throughout the book make the story graphic. The title page exquisitely balanced shows their conception of the flatness of the earth together with wars and modes of travel. The book is bound in rich vellum and bears the title, "Die Ankants neue Welt oder Beschreibung des Welt-theils Amerika und des Sud-Landes."

The Holy Bible of Martin Luther, printed in 1563 is another valuable work to be found in this collection. This volume in particular affords a good example of the binding and printing done in the sixteenth century.

"Cosmographie" is the title of a book written by Sebastian Munsterum in 1544. The edition on-view bears the date 1628. It contains a description of the entire world, an ambitious undertaking which did not seem to daunt the writers of that day.

This rare collection will be on view in the library reading room for the remainder of the month.

TAKE TESTIMONY AT WAUPACA IN TWO CRASH SUITS

Albert Durkey, Ida Fraedricks' Tell Story of Accident Last August

Albert Durkey, town of Dupont, Waupaca-co farmer, and Miss Ida Fraedricks, both of whom have brought suit against Herbert Phiel, Bear Creek, for damages received in an automobile accident at Maple Valley corners Aug. 30, 1929, were the principal witnesses to testify as the case opened Tuesday in circuit court at Waupaca. Judge Byron B. Parks, of Stevens Point, is presiding.

Although Durkey and Miss Fraedricks, the latter through her guardian and father, William Fraedricks, are suing Phiel on separate counts, the two cases are being tried jointly because they grew out of the same crash. Phiel has entered a counterclaim against Durkey for injuries he received in the crash.

Durkey, the first witness of the stand, said that as he approached the Maple Valley corners he slowed down for the intersection when a small coupe driven by Phiel crashed into him, striking the car in the center on the left side. Damage to the car amounted to $500.00 and caused depreciation in value of the car from $1,350 to $500, he alleged.

Durkey estimated that Phiel was driving 25 to 30 miles an hour as he approached the intersection, said he did not slow down for the crossing and that he was driving in the center of the road. He testified that Miss Fraedricks was found lying on the ground between the two cars, that she was unconscious when picked up and was bleeding profusely. She was taken to the home of a farmer near the corner and a doctor was called.

Miss Fraedricks said she saw the Durkey car approaching the intersection and cried out "Look, a car is coming."

"It's too late now," Phiel is alleged to have answered and swung to the northwest side of the intersection.

Injuries to Miss Fraedricks according to her testimony, resulted in her confinement in an Oshkosh hospital for nine days. She suffered

NOMINATION PAPERS FILED BY STEINHAEUER

The first nomination papers for the spring election were filed with Carl Becher, city clerk, Tuesday afternoon by Alderman Mike Steinhauer. "Mike" was also the first candidate to take out his nomination papers.

Nomination blanks for Aldermen Harvey Priebe and George Brautigan were secured Tuesday. Papers are now in circulation for Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer; Alfred C. Bosser, city attorney; Mayor A. C. Tule, Aldermen Priebe, Brautigan, and George T. Richards; and Seymour Gmeiner, school supervisor.

SLAYER OF YOUTH HELD ON FIRST DEGREE CHARGE

Ontonagon, Mich.—(P)—Suff suffering from injuries received when he was beaten by a gang of youths, Jonas Store, 59, of Mass City, today was held in the Ontonagon-co jail on a charge of first degree murder. Store shot and killed Edwin Sovari, 21, of Greenland, in an altercation which he said followed refusal to comply with the gang's demand that he serve them home brew.

The story of Store was that Sovari and his companions entered his home Sunday night and demanded liquor. When he refused, a fight ensued. During the dispute, Store said, he seized a rifle, intending to frighten the youths away, but the gun was accidentally discharged, the shot penetrating Sovari's stomach. Death followed within a short time.

After the shooting, Store was beaten severely by the Sovari boy's companions.

a gash on the right side of her head, causing a long scar; injury to her right eye, a cut about 1 1/2 inches long on her neck, an injured arm and back sprained left elbow and bruised knees, it is alleged.

She also testified she now is subject to severe headaches in late afternoon and evening and is unable to do much work. She now is a telephone operator at Marion.

Dr. F. Mullaney, Marion, corroborated Miss Fraedricks' testimony. Other witnesses described the positions of the cars after the crash.

Taking of testimony was resumed Wednesday morning.

GANG LEADER IS AMBUSHED AND KILLED

Laughed at Warning Given Him Two Weeks Ago by Detective

New York —(P)—The name of Charles (Red) Donnelly, 39, was added today to the long list of gang leaders who have been slain in the fight for control of the waterfront in the Red Hook district of Brooklyn. He was ambushed and shot twice in the head by gunmen hidden behind a checkers shanty on the pier of the Colombian line.

Two weeks ago Detective William Brosnan, whose business it is to know the doings of the waterfront gangs met Donnelly.

"I've been hearing things, Red," the detective told the stevedore czar, "you had better lay off. It's in the cards that they'll get you sometime."

Brosnan said Donnelly answered his warning with a laugh.

He was watching the ship loaders from whom he extracted tribute yesterday when a messenger approached him and said:

"You're wanted down on the pier."

Donnelly strolled toward the pierhead. There he was shot down.

HAD BRIEF REIGN

Like that of many of his predecessors, Donnelly's reign was short. Eighteen months ago he was arraigned in homicide court charged with the slaying of his immediate predecessor, Eddie Martin. It was the fifth time he had faced a murder charge and, as in the previous cases, it was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Magistrate Healy in dismissing the charge said to Donnelly:

"Go out and keep the good work up. Shoot each other all you want to and the sooner we get rid of gang leaders in Brooklyn the better it will be for the police and the people."

Donnelly was a lieutenant of "Wild" Bill Lovett when the Lovett gang terrorized Brooklyn eight years ago. Their racket was the extraction of tribute from stevedores em-

PAPER MILLS OBSERVE REST LAW, SAYS WILCOX

Fred M. Wilcox, chairman of the Wisconsin Industrial commission, Wednesday morning denied that paper mill owners of the state at a recent hearing in Appleton claimed they are having considerable difficulty in observing the one-day-rest-in-seven law. A story appeared in a Madison newspaper Tuesday which stated that the commission had refused to revise its ruling on the rest law in spite of the fact that the paper mill owners claimed they are having difficulty in observing the regulations.

"The conference at Appleton showed that all paper mills of the state were complying with the law and are not having any difficulty in working out schedules which enabled them to do so," Mr. Wilcox said. "As a matter of fact this commission has not even considered changing its attitude on the law because the conference revealed it is working well. The paper mill owners and employees represented by a special committee, worked out its own provisions under which the law was to be enforced and the commission has approved and enforced these regulations."

TAX COLLECTION ON MONDAY IS $16,588

With the collection of $16,588.81 in taxes on Monday, the largest daily total of the tax collection period was chalked up in the office of the city treasurer. The previous high figure was $14,221.52, taken in on Jan. 13. Tuesday's collection amounted to $11,634.25.

played along the docks and control of the gambling in the district. After Lovett's murder in a gang hangout, Donnelly shared leadership with Eddie McGuire until another shooting removed McGuire. The rise of Eddie Martin eclipsed Donnelly's rule until Martin in his turn was killed.

Four men were arrested last night charged with complicity in the slaying. All four denied any knowledge of the crime.

VALLEY COUNCIL TO STAGE CAMPAIGN FOR $10,600 THIS YEAR

Hope to Wipe Out $1,500 Mortgage on Scout Camp; Approve New Charter

The valley council of boy scouts will open a campaign in February for $10,600 in Appleton, Neenah and Menasha to wipe out a $1,500 mortgage on Camp Chicago's on Lake Winnebago and to finance council control during the coming year, it was decided at a meeting of the directors at Hotel Northern Tuesday evening. A dinner at 6 o'clock preceded the business meeting.

The board also approved the council's charter for the coming year and application was made Wednesday to J. N. Donovan, and H. L. Gear, of the National Scout Council at New York City, according to M. G. Clark, valley scout executive. Mr. Clark included a complete report of council activities of 1929.

E. A. Killoren, scout commissioner, discussed the probability of a troop rating and inspection plan for members of troop committees and commissioners. A report on projects for the coming year was submitted.

A short talk on scout councils was made by the Rev. Father George Link, Benedit, Ill., co-director of boy

Bandit Shot After Walking In Trap Laid By Police

IS AMBUSHED AFTER COPS GET TIPOFF

Falls Before Police Fire While in Act of Reaching for His Gun

Chicago—(AP)—A thief that was shot and probably fatally wounded early today by policemen who trapped him in the robbery of a Gold Coast apartment hotel.

Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, and two police officers were concealed off the lobby of the 211 E. Delaware building as the robber entered. The man carried a revolver which he pointed at the night clerk, Abraham Densik. Neither Roche nor his men were able to interfere, fearing the thief might use Densik as a shield or possibly shoot him. The officers remained concealed while the robber took Densik to the 17th floor and locked him up.

Back in the lobby, the robber walked to the cash register and was taking $50 from it when he heard Policeman John Greer call out, "throw up your hands."

The robber whirled, reaching for his gun. Greer fired once, the bullet entering the shoulder and penetrating one lung.

EXPECTED TO DIE

At the hospital slight hope for the man's recovery was given. He was tentatively identified as Andrew Wright, 35 years old.

Acting on tips from underworld sources, Roche has had police guards at the 211 E. Delaware building and three other Gold Coast hotels for several days. The other places marked for robbery were the Peterson, the Seneca and the 201 E. Delaware hotels, Roche said.

In raids early Monday Roche arrested several men and women who he believed were responsible for recent Gold Coast robberies.

Police traced a telephone number scribbled on an envelope in Wright's pockets and learned from J. Gordon Peglow, that Wright formerly resided in Denver, Colo. He had worked for a magazine agency there as a clerk in the state hotel. Peglow said he had not seen him since leaving Denver.

Wright married in Colorado, Peglow stated. He said he had learned that the man's wife died not long ago. John Benite, 2333 Merimacave, St. Louis, was the robber's father-in-law, Peglow said.

NEOLITHIC MAN IS FOUND BY FARM BOY

Old Clay Mounds Develop into Burial Ground of Primitive Man

Lewistown, Ill.—(AP)—A country boy's curiosity in a few "wuthless clay piles" that had been an eyesore to generations old his farm folk ancestors brought him distinction.

Dr. Don Dickson in boyhood trudged barefoot over these clay piles, his youthful imagination stirred each time a whitened skull, stone spearhead, or bit of shell head was exposed by a heavy rain or fresh plowing.

"Indians," his father would tell him. "Just a few wuthless redskins who went to their happy hunting ground hereabouts."

And then the elder Dickson would complain because the "pesky mounds" made the cultivation of his farm difficult.

Two years ago, Dr. Dickson began excavating one of the smaller mounds. What he found made him neglect his profession of medicine and later remove his name from the medical college. With a scientific storehouse in his backyard.

Scientists came to view the huge burial ground of the Neolithic man. Five hundred skeletons were excavated. Primitive implements of warfare were found, crude cooking utensils, and cruder bits of ornamentation, have been revealed by this amateur archeologist.

The bodies were buried, one on the other, with a four inches of clay between. In one mound they were closely packed as to suggest a pestilence.

"Some pottery we found suggested an attempt at glazing," said Dickson. "Many effigy pieces were found such as birds and animals."

NEW LONDON MERCHANTS JOIN ANTI-CHAIN GROUP

Home merchants at New London Tuesday night organized the New London Unit of the Fox River Valley Home Merchants association which has its headquarters in Appleton. A large crowd of merchants attended the meeting at which temporary officers were elected as follows: Fred Krause, president; Miss Meta Popke, J. F. Serrano, Austin Dextor, Roy Queeman and A. L. Sweeney, executive committee.

Samuel Steiman, Appleton, director of the valley association, was the principal speaker. He cautioned the group against formation of independent local units, thereby weakening the effectiveness of the anti-chain store movement.

A group of Waupaca merchants attended the meeting. The Waupaca group stated their intention of organizing a local unit in the near future.

Berlin—(AP)—The German Academic Exchange Service reports that it placed 78 foreign students in German schools last year and sent 73 Germans abroad. Of the foreigners, 31 came from America and an equal number of Germans went to the United States.

Mr. Sell described the county 4-H club movement and explained its purposes and advantages to the boys and girls of the county. The school plans to organize a 4-H club in the near future.

LABOR FEDERATION BEGINS BIG JOB OF UNIONIZING SOUTH

Fate of Organization May Rest Partly on Outcome of Campaign

Washington—The largest effort in the history of organized labor has begun with the American Federation of Labor's campaign to unionize the workers of the south.

Although thus far defeated in early skirmishes in a few of the southern mill centers the federation promises that it will shortly have at least a hundred full-time organizers working below the Mason-Dixon line and paying special attention to the textile situation which has attracted more attention than any other problem arising in labor affairs for several years.

Pursuance of the announced campaign to a successful conclusion would be one means of helping reverse the American labor movement. It would at least partially answer charges of inertia, stagnation and extreme conservatism often laid against high officials of the A. F. of L. Developments of the next six months are likely to indicate whether the federation is actually going to make a comeback or whether an active and more aggressive labor movement is to supplant it.

WORKERS ARE GETTING BUSY

Labor men returning from the recent conference at Charlotte, where organizers appointed for the big drive by the federation's international unions got together for the first time, reported a determined enthusiasm on the part of the men now entering the field.

But the A. F. of L. is faced by three fires. There is the Communist union, the National Textile Workers, whose influence is negligible except when it organizes fields neglected by the federation. There are the southern mill owners and other business men hostile to organized labor. Third, there is a large group of independent labor workers and sympathizers who hold that the present campaign will not be backed by adequate funds, that it will devote too much time to shouting at unimportant Communists and salving business men, that it will soft pedal actual organization, militant tactics and efforts for better wages and conditions, and that it will make no effort to give special aid to the A. F. of L. mill workers who have borne the brunt of the losing battle to date—such as those in Marion, N. C.

But whether the Communists are to make any more headway in the south, whether the mill owners and corporations will continue to dominate without serious dispute and whether the formidable group of critics are to be justified or refuted will depend on the A. F. of L. itself.

Inquiry made by the Post-Crescent at the conference about 50 actual organizers showed up at Charlotte and that 95 of the federation's 164 international unions were represented. Everyone agreed that at least 100 organizers would soon be on the job. Most of the organizers appointed were southerners, which will make it harder for employers to assail the campaign as a "foreign invasion."

The question of how much attention will be paid to the textile industry was partially answered by the fact that whereas about 15 of the 50 organizers present had been instructed by their international to concentrate on organizing their own trades, the others had been instructed to put themselves entirely at the disposal of the committee appointed to supervise the drive campaign. That committee, with central headquarters at Birmingham and subheadquarters likely to be established in Tennessee and in North or South Carolina will pay particular attention to the textile industry.

Most of the organizers appeared to feel that employees everywhere were to be organized and the last battle the "seemingly" was a lack of response on the part of the worker.

SEES NO STRIKE YET

There wasn't much strike talk. Emphasis was placed on the need of educating the south and organizing its workers to the point where collective bargaining could succeed or itself to critics who insist that a long series of strikes will be necessary before southern workers can win a fair wage and fair treatment. As A. F. of L. men reply that there is no sense in calling strikes until they have built up strong unions.

What the movement plans to do for a long time is not quite clear. The international unions will finance their own organizers and the A. F. of L. will finance the headquarters and some other overland work as well as its own handful of organizers.

But the report that $1,000,000 would be raised for the campaign was untrue. Although at the last A. F. of L. convention someone suggested the million, nothing was done about it.

CALLS SUIT "SILLY"

Chicago—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Murphy, widow of John B. Murphy, wealthy plumbing manufacturer and beneficiary of his $1,000,000 estate, had described today as "silly" charges made against her in a suit filed by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Sarah Carroll, Milwaukee, in an attempt to break Murphy's will. Mrs. Carroll's suit charged that Mrs. Murphy, who was the testator's second wife, was in some way to blame for the death of her husband, his first wife and two of that pair's children.

"Sunny Boys" — and Girls — on Florida Sands

Just kiddin'—or maybe teaching himself how to shoot the young idea—was the cameraman at Miami Beach, Fla., when he got the childish notion of taking these pictures of baby bathing beauties for the Post-Crescent and NEA Service.

center, evidently enjoys it. The latest beach modes for children are illustrated below, center, by Marilyn and Victor Chartrand (left) of Forest Hills, Long Island, and Ann Schmidt of Chicago. Getting in practice to be a speed king like his dad, Tommy Milton, Jr., son of the famous motor race driver got a slow start when, as pictured upper right, he steered a turtle across the sands. And imagine the embarrassment of Carol Lyon Johnson of Cincinnati, lower right, when a shoulder strap on her bathing suit broke—right before the camera!

NEW EVIDENCE ON TITMORE GIVEN TO SENATE GROUP

Sub-committee Meets This Week to Consider Recommendation

Washington—New evidence both for and against the confirmation of James N. Tittmore of Omro for United States marshal of the Eastern District of Wisconsin has been placed before the Senate Judiciary committee.

The sub-committee to which the Tittmore nomination has been referred will meet this week some time to consider the new evidence. The sub-committee of the Judiciary committee consists of Senators John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, and Clarence C. Dill of Washington.

Tittmore's nomination has been before the Senate more or less continuously for eight months, and the Judiciary committee has never made a report to the Senate on it.

President Hoover first sent the nomination of Tittmore, to the Senate on May 15, 1929, along with the nominations of Stephen J. McMahon of Milwaukee to be a member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals and Charles H. Rawlinson of La Crosse to be United States marshal of the Western District of Wisconsin. The nominations of McMahon and Rawlinson were confirmed promptly, while Tittmore's nomination expired when the special session recessed, and was again sent to the Senate after its recess.

The class will give $150 towards the contest.

The students were reminded of the special graduation and college entrance requirements, which must be met. Senior conferences to discuss credits and plans for future education and life work were to start Wednesday.

William Geier, class president, appointed Ethel Sevier, chairman of the committee which will be in charge of senior graduation invitations. Other members of the committee are Agnes Earle and Mary Ship. Miss Ethel Carter is faculty sponsor.

SCHMIEGE BACK FROM COMMITTEE MEETING

Oscar J. Schmiede, assistant district attorney and assemblyman from the first Outagamie district, returned Tuesday night from Madison where he attended sessions of the legislature committee on aviation last week. This committee is planning several trips to airports in other sections of the country.

The Oldtimer Asks...

Do You Remember When—Putman was Appleton's house boy?

We spent hours trying to learn how to play "Home Sweet Home" on a mouth organ and how proud we were when we thought we could detect a resemblance.

We used to wheel wind fall apples to "Birdman" Bateman's on Rankin St. near College Ave. to be made into cider in his hand press and how we used to swing the gallon jug of cider up into one arm to take a "swing" from time to time on our return?

Nearly every house wife had a crock or barrel of home made soft soap and thought she couldn't keep house without it?

If our folks were New Englanders such dishes as Injun meal pudding, cider apple sauce, baked beans, brown bread, cod fish served in different ways, baked Tallman Sweet apples and milk, hasty pudding, hulled corn, pumpkin pie, boiled dinner, (corned beef, salt pork, cabbage, rutabagas and potatoes cooked together)—corn beef hash—Johnny cake could be depended on in season?

CHAMBER GROUP PRESENTS PROJECTS AT MADISON MEET

State Highway Commissioners Promise to Help Solve Problems

Although no definite action was taken by the Wisconsin Highway commission at a meeting with the Appleton Chamber of Commerce highway committee at Madison on Tuesday afternoon, regarding several road projects proposed for Appleton and vicinity, the commissioners promised to give special consideration to the committee's requests.

Paving of Highway 10 east of Appleton to Manitowish, rerouting of Highway 125 to eliminate hazards on railroad crossings, and improvement of Highway 47 from the Outagamie-co. line to Bondville, were the chief issues discussed.

Members of the committee reported that they had conducted a thorough investigation of the Highway 19 project and found that the Calumet-co. board is heartily in favor of the project and would offer all necessary cooperation.

GOCHNAUER DESCRIBES CONCRETE INDUSTRY

Chael O. Gochnauer, president of Rotary club, addressed the group at its meeting at Hotel Northern Tuesday noon. Mr. Gochnauer, who is head of the Gochnauer Concrete Products company, spoke on his vocation.

He told of the progress of the concrete industry, and of the development of the local company. Years ago, he said, the manufacture of 300 blocks a day was considered a good day's work, now that many blocks are produced in an hour. The local company, which formerly distributed only inside the limits of Appleton, now delivers its products over a radius of 150 miles from Appleton.

Speaking on the industry as a whole, Mr. Gochnauer explained how the National Cement association maintains a staff of engineers to discover the best methods of handling cement to improve the strength and wearing qualities of concrete products.

The speaker used a chart to demonstrate his talk, which was somewhat of a technical nature.

BIRTHS

A daughter was born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hagen, 1411 S. Jefferson-st. at St. Elizabeth hospital.

RELIEF FROM FRIGID WAVE TO ARRIVE SOON

Relief from the cold wave which has held Appleton and vicinity in its grip continuously for the past few weeks, is due to arrive here in the next 24 hours, according to the weatherman.

Skies probably will be cloudy Wednesday night, but they are due to clear by Thursday afternoon.

Winds are shifting in the south and southwest, which is a fair indication that warmer weather is coming.

MUSEUM PARTY SEEKS RARE HONEY BIRDS

Chicago—(AP)—A field museum expedition from Chicago has left to seek in Africa a number of rare specimens of bird and animal life, some of them not found in any museum in the world.

Among the chief objects will be the African honey bird and the very rare and beautiful blue antelope of Portuguese West Africa. The expedition is led by Arthur E. Verney of New York and London.

The honey bird is a little bird, which leads men to honey. It is said to whistle softly at the sight of man, and once attention is arrested to flutter up into the branches of a tree where bees have stored honey.

FARM COMMITTEE APPROVES CO-OP MARKETING PLAN

Authorizes County Agent to Assist Local Units in Organizing

Outagamie-co's agricultural committee met Tuesday evening as being strongly in favor of local cooperative units which are affiliated with strong national units marketing farm products on a nation-wide scale. This action reaffirms the action of the committee last fall when it expressed the same policy.

Under the resolution Gus Sell, county agent, is authorized to take an active part in building up cooperative marketing units in the county wherever there is a local desire for such a unit. The committee went on record as favoring actions taken by Mr. Sell in forming cooperative units and instructed him to increase his activities in this line as much as possible.

Members of the agricultural committee were: Supervisor, Malachi Ryan, chairman, Fred Draphal, Mike Mack and John Diederich and A. G. Meating.

The committee also went on record as favoring the passage of the proposed bill, now in congress, to provide relief for drainage districts. The Wisconsin Drainage District association already has approved this measure which would create a revolving fund for the relief of farmers who are delinquent in payment of drainage district taxes. The committee will send a copy of its resolution favoring the measure to Congressman George J. Schneider and Senators John J. Blaine and Robert M. La Follette.

FLOGGING BACK IN ENGLAND AS CRIME SPREADS

Magistrates Are Not Hesitating to Revive Old Methods of Punishment

London—(AP)—Violent crime, timidly lifting up its head in England, is being scourged back into submission with that old familiar implement of justice—the cat-o-nine-tails.

For while Englishmen love to read about crimes of violence, and doate particularly on exaggerated accounts of criminal gangs terrorizing the streets, they don't like crimes of violence in their own country. In fact, they won't stand for them.

So English magistrates, are not hesitating to revive the old custom.

Magistrates at Leeds, Liverpool and Maidstone have answered violence with the whip in recent cases, and here in London's famous criminal court, the Old Bailey, judges have been shaking the dust off the cat-o-nine-tails and letting its brutal effects learn how it feels to be treated brutally.

"IN SIX WEEKS KONJOLA GAVE NEW HEALTH!"

Lady Tells How She Found
Long Sought For Relief in
New and Different Medicine

MRS. MYRA GILES

"In six weeks Konjola gave me new health," said Mrs. Myra Giles, 521 North Sixteenth Street, East, Cedar Rapids Ia. "I had been suffering from an illness four years ago had about made life unbearable for me. Daily I suffered from stomach trouble. I was subject to gas and indigestion pains. My heart palpitated wildly and I belched quantities of undigested food. Due to kidney trouble I suffered from severe pains across the small of my back. Each morning I had dizzy spells and my hands and feet felt numb. I was very nervous and found it impossible to sleep soundly at night. "My friends insisted that Konjola was a different medicine and finally I consented to give it a trial. At the end of six weeks all trace of stomach trouble was gone. Konjola strengthened my kidneys and ended the dizzy spells." Konjola is sold in Appleton at Schintz Bros Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

THE TROUBLE WITH PROHIBITION

Senator Wheeler of Montana, one of the high lights in the Progressive aurora borealis, makes a really valid attack upon prohibition enforcement when he declares it is a "complete breakdown." Mr. Wheeler, an ardent dry, holds that the fundamental fault with prohibition enforcement is that it has become a "political football."

This is exactly the same analysis of the failure of enforcement that we presented editorially a few days ago. We have, in fact, made this contention all through the experiment. The truth is, as the Montana senator has been compelled to admit, that there has never been a bonafide purpose to enforce prohibition from the day it was written into the constitution and the laws of the United States. The less said about President Harding's administration of prohibition the better. Mr. Coolidge, while from time to time expounding the doctrine of law enforcement and deploring lawlessness, was indifferent to the experiment.

Thus eight years passed with what may be conservatively termed a dishonest pretense of giving effect to the eighteenth amendment. A very large percentage of appointments in the prohibition service from top to bottom were of a questionable character and those who were sincere and honest never had the loyal backing of their superiors. The whole record is the rawest exhibition conceivable of executive dereliction of duty and of political chicanery. Senator Wheeler has hit the nail squarely on the head. It has taken him as long as a good many other prohibitionists to see the truth, but it must ultimately be recognized.

President Hoover is making a genuine attempt to secure prohibition enforcement by a combination of civic appeal, education and arrest. The larger emphasis is placed, however, not on the efficacy and completeness of law enforcement, but on voluntary acceptance by the individual. If it should succeed it will be because of this fact. Mr. Hoover is too experienced, too metropolitan a person to delude himself with the idea that prohibition can or ever will be enforced by the power of the law.

Exactly the same condition as Senator Wheeler complains of will go on forever unless the people freely and of their own accord obey the constitution and alter their habits. No president would ever dare to depend solely upon the law to enforce the eighteenth amendment and none ever will. Since there is no possibility of changing the constitution or revising the legislation under it during Mr. Hoover's administration, his new approach to the problem becomes important. That he is making some progress toward convincing the people that they ought to obey the law because it is the law is evident. Most citizens have a conscientious respect for their government and the constitution and can be reached by the right sort of appeal. However, we have no expectation that the country will be made dry, or to a perceptible degree drier than at present. Politicians will protect the bootleggers and rum-runners ad infinitum. That phase of prohibition is not going to be changed. We will continue to be a nation compromised by deliberate violation of the supreme law of the land, which we both refuse to respect or repeal.

THE WOMEN WIN

The last time Madame Ganna Walska came to this country to visit her husband, Harold F. McCormick, a cruel government tried to collect customs duty on a lot of jewelry and costly clothing that she brought with her. These personal effects were said to be worth $2,000,000. Madame Walska fought the case on the ground that her marriage to McCormick did not make her an American citizen, that she was still a resident of France, that she came here merely on a visit and had a right to take her personal property in and out of the country duty free.

She has now won the long-fought case. The court decision stated that the legal status of a woman has changed so much in recent years that in most states she stands on an equality with her husband. It held that Mme. Walska is indeed, as she claimed, a resident of France. This is held to be a great step forward in the recognition of the rights of women. Nevertheless, it may awaken jealousy in the bosoms of many wealthy American women who have been caught bringing in undeclared "personal effects" and have been compelled to pay heavy fines in addition to the duty.

CHICAGO'S FINANCING

The city of Chicago is on the verge of bankruptcy. Including the January payroll now due, more than 40,000 employees have not been paid $11,276,000 in salaries due them. Money has been borrowed to the limit and every expedient resorted to to obtain funds. Banks refuse to advance any more money on expected taxes and the city is unable to meet its current obligations. Miscellaneous receipts are used to pay bond principal and interest so that there will be no default, and to keep water and sewer departments in operation. A committee of citizens has been organized to raise money privately to rescue the city from its predicament.

The causes of this situation, quite aside from delayed collection of taxes due to reassessment, are apparent to all those who have followed Chicago's municipal history in recent years. Revelations of dishonesty and graft have been a frequent occurrence and have involved millions of dollars. There has been gross incompetence and inefficiency and betrayals of public trust without end.

The worst phase of it is that the people have been fully cognizant of what was going on and knew there was not only extravagance and dereliction of duty, but graft and malfeasance of office of an extensive and alarming character. Yet, with all this information at hand and with the constant exposes by the press, the people have continued to elect to office the very men who have robbed the city or have permitted it to be robbed.

These being the incontrovertible facts one wonders whether the people of the city of Chicago are capable of self-government. Whatever the conclusion, the conditions which exist there today and which have existed for years are a sorry commentary on municipal government in America. They illustrate also the extent to which people are misled by vocal and irresponsible politicians, and there as elsewhere accept their pretenses and promises at face value. After electing them they close their eyes to what goes on and on the next election day flock to the polls in their ignorance and prejudice and reelect them. Chicago is an extreme case, but in some degree every American municipality is faced with the same problem.

THE REPARATIONS PLAN

The new reparations plan goes over. Germany agrees. France, under the mastery Premier Tardieu, has her way. The payments to the allied and associated powers, including the United States, will run until 1988 and will total $30,000,000,000. The German finance minister is already making inquiries as to whether he can borrow in this country funds to make the first payment. It sounds good, and it is good, as far as international peace is concerned. Europe will be safer and better off with that vexing question settled.

But will Germany really pay an average of about $500,000,000 a year for the next 58 years? That is what nobody can say. It hardly seems possible, no matter what the equity of the case may be, that any nation should continue such payments so long. The next generation of debtors, if not this one, may consider it "tribute," and may rebel. The creditors may find it wise to make a new deal, or a series of new deals, progressively liberal, for the sake of amity and business.

Germany, no doubt, is signing this settlement as she signed previous ones, in hope of such an outcome.

Of all the nations in Europe, the French have the least children and the Irish the most.

Consider the case of the admiral who had the misfortune to wait for a friend outside the entrance to a New York theatre.

Virtue is considered its own reward, but after calling to mind Tex Guinan, Peggy Hopkins Joyce and the like, we have come to the conclusion that it doesn't bring publicity.

Today's Anniversary

McKINLEY'S BIRTH

On January 29, 1843, William McKinley, 29th president of the United States, was born at Niles, Ohio.

As the seventh in a family of nine children, McKinley was obliged to enter at an early age the iron industry, the trade of his father. He studied at Allegheny College, but left it to teach school.

Deserting the classroom to enlist at the outbreak of the Civil War, McKinley served with such distinction with the Union army that he was mustered out a major.

After studying law, and passing the bar, he attracted considerable attention by campaigning for Rutherford Hayes, who was running for governor of Ohio. As a result, McKinley was elected to Congress and served seven consecutive terms in the lower house.

In 1891, he was elected governor of Ohio, and again his work attracted attention. When the Republicans convened at St. Louis to nominate a candidate for president, McKinley was easily the choice.

His outstanding events which marked McKinley's first administration as president were the Spanish War and the subsequent acquisition of Porto Rico, the Philippines and the Island of Guam.

The president was re-elected, but his second term was cut short by an assassin's bullet. His death plunged the nation in deep grief.

GOSH WHAT A NIGHT

Go to sleep, you're dreaming!

That's not just my way of twisting common ideas out of shape. It is more logical or consistent than the common expression "Wake up, you're dreaming." You see we all dream every minute we're asleep. If we recall our dreams when we awake that means we're sleeping lightly. If we are startled out of sleep by our dreams, that means we're barely crossed the threshold between consciousness and unconsciousness. If visions come to us, of the spirits of absent friends, or anything like that, just as we are merging from sleep to waking or from consciousness to sleep, that means our subconsciousness has played a trick, at least it seems that way to me. Out of the subconsciousness, where emotions, inspirations, fancies, imaginations are born, come not only phantasies such as spirit materializations, but many of the finest, most creative and best ideas that inventors, painters, poets, architects, engineers, shoemakers and scientists use in the elaboration of their finished products. So we need not complain if we happen to recall particularly vivid dreams or their weird contents.

It is only when the dream state becomes a chronic one that we may fairly complain, and even then it is generally the dreamer's own fault. In good health one recalls dreams only occasionally, and one is startled out of sleep by a bad dream never.

In not so good health, one dreams so much and remembers so many details on awakening, that going to sleep comes to be rather dreadful to contemplate, whereas it should be the most restful and healthy person should hit the hay with something of the ardor a live boy feels and manifests as he tackles a quarter section of pumpkin pie. The little old beddy, if it is rightly equipped and arranged, ought to call a cheer, welcome to the owner, the sole owner, of course whenever his thoughts travel toward sleep; it ought to say "Come on, let that so till tomorrow—'you'll find it easier to tackle them, you know." I fear this may not apply to the sad sleeping accommodations many people are content to endure. It's funny how folks who insist on having excellent riding accommodations for the few minutes or at most the hours they travel every day, yet languish through endless nights in beds that should have gone to the junk pile long since.

The common causes of shallow sleep and disturbing dreams are (1) tobacco excess, (2) overeating (3) indulgence in alcoholic beverages, (4) insufficient ventilation and overheating of sleeping room, (5) neglect of daily open air exercises (6) too heavy bed coverings or sleeping arrangements that the sleeper should be ashamed to be found alive in, to say nothing of death.

To bad dreamers I heartily commend the familiar prescription: Six miles of oxygen daily, on the hoof.

To all except those already over-nourished I as heartily commend a bedtime lunch or meal as an aid to good sleep.

A good conscience from the hygienic point of view is the best assurance of sound, dreamless, refreshing sleep.

After all, most of us sleep as well as we deserve.

Will you tell me why my doctor always tells me I have a cold when you claim there is no such thing as a cold? (Annabelle.)

Answer—As a rule the doctor's motive is to avoid effort. If the patient will accept "cold" as a disease, he can avoid the effort of making a diagnosis. The doctor should worry. Meanwhile if whatever ails you proves to be a minor or self limited trouble, the doctor's reputation remains A No. 1. On the other hand, if the illness proves to be something serious the doctor can almost always switch his diagnosis under cover of the excitement. Or in case a patient should claim to be the error, he can cite plenty of alleged medical or health authorities to support the allegation that the "common cold" may turn into anything you have.

The Tynmities

By Hal Cochran

THE flower looked cute as cute could be, it stood up and earned the bee to let the Tynmities alone. "Remember now," it cried, "you must not sting a single one. A sting is never any fun. How would you like it if a singer went into your head?"

The bee then settled on the ground and very calmly looked around. It seemed that it felt guilty and was quite ashamed. "I'm very bad, I have no doubt, I promise I will sting no one. Then I cannot be blamed."

This made all of the Tynmities smile and then, in just a little while they walked up to the man's steeple and shouted, "Howdy do! We hope that you'll be friendly now. We know we'll get along somehow. Shake hands with every one of us. We're glad we're meeting you!"

"That's very fine," replied the bee. "And now you can depend on me. I'll never do one thing that's wrong. You're safe when I'm around. And say, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll very gladly fight for you. From now on, Hal's Tynmities, in friendship we are bound."

The little flower broke in once more. "Hurray! The Tynmities heard it. I guess that I can leave you now, since everything's all right. I'm going to hide back in the trees. Just watch me scamper off with ease." And then the Tynmities watched it as it disappeared from sight.

"Hop on my back," the bee cried out. "I'll ride you all around now. I'm pretty big and I am sure that I can hold you all." They all hopped on and thought it rare. The bee called into the air and shouted, as a warning, "Don't you fall now. Hang on tight!"

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—It was the "boys" of a genial old-time conpuncher and miner who figured just about as prominently as any one else on the hill the night the capitol burst into flames.

And Cap'n Gnash will tell you now that he was right proud of the boys his "boys" faced the emergency. Capt. Stephen J. Gnash is chief of the police force at the capitol. And he refers to some 90 odd men on the force as his "boys" because two-thirds of them are students in various colleges and universities around Washington.

It was Ed Morris LaClair, a 23-year-old Georgetown student, who was one of the first to sound the alarm. And a few minutes later it was LaClair and Hallock Rose, another Georgetown student officer, who aided firemen get Artist Moberly to a point of safety after flames had swept the little studio in the dome.

These are others, Cap'n Gnash will tell you, who acted just as bravely as did these two.

EDUCATED

These men who guard the capitol and the senate and house office buildings compose perhaps the queerest outfit of its kind in the country. Certainly they can lay claim to being about the most erudite.

A great number of them hold college degrees and are pursuing a post to make it possible for them to do graduate work in the capitol.

Some of them are studying law. Some of them are preparing themselves for the foreign service. Others are studying medicine.

Most of the privates range in age from 18 to 25. They come from all states—appointed by a senator or a representative.

Faces come and go almost daily. The man who completes his course of study, for example, at the Georgetown university foreign service school today, will be replaced tomorrow by a man just arrived to take up a three-year course of law.

The newcomer may even fail to fit the outgoing man's uniform—if it fits. And if that particular one does not fit he may find one in Cap'n Gnash's locker—left there by another—which will do.

WORK IN SHIFTS

There are three shifts so that time may be had for work, sleep and study.

In addition to Captain Gnash, there are four lieutenants, five special officers and five sergeants. There are guardrooms in both the senate and house office buildings. These arrested air first brought before the captain, and if their misdeeds are serious, confined to one of the guardrooms until the metropolitan police arrive to take them into custody.

However, the guardrooms are rarely used. The force is concerned mostly with directing traffic and guiding tourists to points about the capitol grounds.

RADIO COMMISSION ENDS ORGANIZATION OF LEGAL DIVISION

Two New Assistants General
Counsel Are Appointed to Body

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
Washington (CPA)—With radio's horizon dusky with pending legal skirmishes the federal radio commission for the first time since its creation has completed the organization of its legal division.

Two new assistants general counsel have been appointed. Ben S. Fisher, of Marshfield, Ore., an attorney of 15 years experience and Duke M. Patrick, 23-year-old Indianapolis lawyer, have been named to the $7,500 per annum vacancies by Thad H. Brown and approved by the commission. The third assistant general counselship is held by Paul D. P. Spearman, of Jackson, Miss.

The commission never before has had its full quota of assistants general counsel. Paul M. Segal, of Denver, held one of the three posts along with Mr. Spearman, but he resigned recently to engage in the practice of radio law. He is associated with B. M. Webster, Jr., who resigned as general counsel at the same time.

LITIGATION GROWS

The volume of radio litigation has grown steadily within the past two years. It is still virgin legal territory for there is written on the statute books today only a smattering of real radio legal precedent.

The immediate outlook is for greatly increased activity in radio law-making. By virtue of the action of the supreme court in the WGI case just a week ago, the court of appeals here sits as a super-radio commission. That means that every case decided adversely by the commission is potentially a case to be considered by the appeals court.

Each of the new assistants general counsel come to the commission recommended by eminent jurists of their states. Mr. Patrick, who also has assumed office, was endorsed by the judges of the appellate court of Indiana; Governor Leslie of the state. Mr. Fisher, who also is a native of Indiana, is expected to report for duty in about two weeks. Forty years of age, he is a graduate of the law school of the University of Illinois. From 1922 to 1924 he served as district attorney of Marshall. He also carries the endorsements of staff jurists, headed by Federal Judge John H. McNary, and Circuit Judge James T. Brand.

The organization of the engineering division of the commission still remains incomplete. Prof. C. M. Jansky, Jr., of Minneapolis, is prominently mentioned for the position of chief engineer, which now carries a $10,000 salary.

Talks To Parents

SHY

By Alice Judson Peale

There are people who try to make a shy child over by main strength and force of argument.

It's "Why don't you say how do you do to the lady?" and "Come over and make friends with the nice little boy," and despite his protest and shrinkings the shy child is dragged through the formula of saluting an elder or making friends.

Of course it doesn't work. Even though he succeeds in going through the ritual required of him the shy child suffers agonies of misery and shrinks further and further within himself.

Shy children can't be made sociable and aggressive all at once. The tactful approach is necessary.

The adult who really wishes to make friends with a child does not intently mentioned for the position of chief engineer, which now carries a $10,000 salary.

enter into an embarrassed, forced conversation with him. If the child does not respond to his initial greeting, he leaves him alone until some natural turn of the conversation, some activity, some toy, turns the child's interest in that direction and he forgets himself and crawls out of his shell.

Shy children make friends best with other children if they are exposed to them in an atmosphere which is free from adult restraint and in which there are real play opportunities.

The well meaning adult who tries to hatch sociability succeeds only in placing the children in a forced situation in which their natural impulses to simple objective play are choked off by a strange self-consciousness.

Unless the cause for shyness is a deep seated feeling of inferiority or some other very unusual emotional complication, the shy child may be trusted to find himself through being simply exposed to but not forced into sociability.

PREFERRED STOCKS ARE INFLUENCED BY LIQUIDATION WAVES

Dividend, However, Cannot Be Menaced by Any Conceivable Depression

By GEORGE T. HUGHES

Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press

New York—If it be asked what is a preferred stock in the highest grade of investments the answer is not simple. There is no clearly defined line between high grade and second grade preferred stocks nor between the latter and the speculative group. In a general way a preferred stock is entitled to the highest rating when its market price is responsive only to changes in the money rate or to fluctuations in the commodity price level. It is one security the safety of the dividend on which could not be menaced by any conceivable depression in the industry represented. And yet over a period of years changes in the ratings of preferred stocks do take place. Sometimes they improve and sometimes they deteriorate.

Everyone would admit today that the preferred stock of U. S. Steel, of Atchafalpa and of Union Pacific are investments of the highest grade, but that was not always true. For many years American Sugar preferred was in that class and it has an unimpaired dividend record which will soon cover forty years but the difficulties in the sugar trade in recent years have to some extent affected the market position of the stock.

All of this is only saying that there is nothing static about the investment rating of preferred stocks any more than there is about that of other securities. However there is never any doubt about deciding whether or not a particular issue belongs in the highest grade at any fixed time and that is the point here. It is these stocks, namely those the status of which cannot be questioned which recover first from a depression, and which are in demand in periods when capital is unusually tight.

Obviously the speculative possibilities in such stocks, by which is meant the chances of their improving in market price, are limited but they are subject to waves of liquidation as are common stocks. If they do not advance they will not decline.

BADGER FARMERS WILL STUDY DAIRY TARIFF

Madison (AP)—Wisconsin farmers who are concerned with protecting their markets against foreign competition will devote time to a consideration of tariffs on dairy products when they meet at the sixteenth annual meeting of the National Cheese Producers' federation here Feb. 12-13.

Charles Holman, Washington, executive secretary of the National Milk Producers' federation, who has been directing the fight for increased rates, will attend the meeting.

Farmers are generally believed to approve the rate of eight cents per pound or 35 percent ad valorem on cheese written into the pending tariff bill. One of the objects of the annual meeting is to study the tariff on an eight cent duty on cheese in lieu of the proposed five and one half cent rate which is now a part of the bill.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

SUE watched her father for a minute as he started down the street. There was a pathetic droop to his shoulders, a slowness to his gait where there had once been a gay elasticity. Life had done it. Life which had not given him the necessary coins to shop in her market-place.

She was still thinking of her father when she met Harry at noon. It was nice to have the hand of her at the town's most exclusive club. Before them; nice to have soft, glamorous lights and lulling music, and to be numbered among the inner circle. But she knew that she could not stand a steady dose of Harry day after day.

She was glad when a strange young man, good looking and broad shouldered, stroled over to their table and looked at her. "Sorry I can't pick you up this afternoon, old man," he told Harry. "But the fact is I have to appear at the jail."

"Jail? Smashed somebody's heart with your new car?" Harry asked. "Alimony or . . . ?"

"Nothing of the sort. A scatter-brained youngster drove right through a stop-light and almost smashed some ribs. I can't see the law broken so I used my car for a barricade and stopped her. She's out on bond and I have to appear against her."

"You're rather hard on the younger generation, aren't you?" Sue asked. "Have to be. The infants think the roads are a good place to race their toy automobiles now. They deserve a lesson and I'm doing my duty. Then he laughed. "Don't look so disturbed. Miss Merryman. Of course I'll let her go."

"She's my sister," Sue told him, a dimple lurking at the corner of her mouth. "She's scared, too."

"Oh, I didn't know that. I'll go to the police station and drop it this minute. The face that launched a thousand ships has nothing on the one that stopped the prosecution!" He made an exaggerated, ridiculous bow and Sue laughed in spite of herself.

But inside she was letting her thoughts talk to themselves. It was because she was with Harry that this man was so willing to help her. And it was Harry's money that made him revered. Money brought power . . . Money destroyed dreams . . . What would Jack say about it all? Not that it mattered. He was letting another girl's pangs eyes and golden curls weave a glamor of mystery. Blue eyes were too clear. Brown hair was just hair.

The man went away; Harry talked and Sue listened quietly. It was easy to be composed when a girl was with a man for whom she had no tumultuous longings, she realized. It was when one cared that poise was needed.

"Hello, Jack? How are you?" Harry's voice broke her reverie. Sue glanced up to find Jack passing their table, and with him was the girl of whom she had been thinking . . . slender, graceful, shining in a silken dress of white with a tiny purple hat that concealed one eye.

They chose the table in front of Sue and Harry, and a few seconds later Barbara's fluted voice came drifting over.

"The demure little stenographer isn't going to let the steel magnate's heavy son get out of her grasp, is she?"

NEXT: Harry champions Sue.

HUNT FOR MAN WHO FIRED ON TEACHER

Milwaukee (AP)—A man who signs himself "The Killer" was the object of a search today by Polk-co authorities after they had been informed of an attempt to shoot Clayton Case, teacher in the Milwaukee High school. Case received two threatening letters which stated that unless he divorced his wife he would be killed. The letters were signed "The Killer." Case, who was married last August, could assign no reason for the threats.

He told authorities he was driving alone on a highway between Milwaukee and Centuria Sunday when a man in an automobile which approached from the rear, fired four shots at him. Case said he believed two men were in the other machine. Two of the bullets went through the windshield of the car, but he was not injured.

Interesting Menus

Pis is perhaps the most typically American of all desserts, but in too many homes the baking of it is rapidly becoming a lost art.

Good pastry is not just luck, nor mere guess. Careful methods and accurate measuring are as essential for pie crust as for angel cake. Our mothers and grandmothers who baked dozens of pies a week had a very definite method and measured with great accuracy "by eye."

There are several kinds of pastry — plain, rich and puff or French. The average pie, however, is made with plain pastry, and the woman who masters this branch of the culinary art can be well satisfied.

If a light, fluffy crust is wanted, air must be worked into the dough. In baking, heat expands the air chambers and the result is a tender, puffy crust. Light, quick handling prevents any escape of air.

A rich tender crust either crumbly or flaky is made only when the shortening is in the right proportion to the flour and when the water is reduced to a minimum. Too much water makes a heavy dough in spite of correct proportions of shortening and flour.

The skilled baker can work her shortening into the flour with her fingers, for her touch is so light that it does not melt the fat. The beginner will find that a pastry blender of two knives will help her.

The most important points to remember in pie baking are the following: Use pastry flour. Use a good quality of shortening. Have all ingredients and utensils cold. Work as quickly as possible. Use only enough ice cold water to hold shortening and flour together. Handle and roll dough as lightly as possible.

The flour and shortening are sufficiently blended when the mixture looks coarse like corn meal.

If the dough is chilled before rolling it, it handles more easily and a flakier crust is the result. Some cooks think that the thorough chilling of the dough presents the crust from becoming soggy.

The following rule is for plain pastry and is enough for one double crust pie:

One and one-half cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 7 tablespoons shortening, about 4 tablespoons ice water. Mix and sift flour and salt. Work in shortening. Add water gradually, working it in to small portions of the flour with a knife. Use only enough water to make the dough clinging together. Divide in two parts making one part larger than the other. The lower crust requires the most dough than the upper one. Roll dough for lower crust on a lightly floured board and fit into pan. Do not stretch the sheet of dough, rather push it down into the pan to make it fit. Add filling and dampen edge of dough. Roll upper crust and cut several gashes in the dough to allow the steam to escape while baking. Fold half of the dough back over the other half and fit over top of pie. Run the rolling pin around the edge of the pan to press the upper and under crusts firmly together. Trim off extra dough around the edge of the pan and press with a pastry jagger or roll between the thumb and forefinger of one hand the forefinger of the other. Bake in a hot oven ten minutes to quickly bake the crust. Then reduce the heat and bake in a moderate oven until both filling and crust are thoroughly cooked.

JURY FINDS DALE MAN DIDN'T VIOLATE LAW

Leo J. Murphy, Dale, was acquitted by a jury in municipal court Tuesday afternoon of a charge of practicing chiropractic without a license. The case was tried before Judge Fred V. Heinemann Monday and Tuesday. The jury retired at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon returning an hour later with a verdict. This was Murphy's second trial on the same count, the jury having disagreed the first time. Murphy was arrested in 1929 on complaint of the secretary of the state board of chiropractors who charged he set himself up as a chiropractor and that he practiced chiropractic without a license. The first jury acquitted him of the first charge and disagreed on the second.

RAIL REPORTS FOR LAST YEAR BRIGHT FOR MOST ROADS

Earnings for December, However, Are Below Those of 1928

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1936, By Cons. Press
Wall Street —(CPA)— There are two ways of looking at the railroad reports of earnings which are now being published. One is to treat them on the basis of the current showing which is unfavorable and the other to take a 12 months picture of results. This is highly satisfactory and in many individual systems represents the greatest amount earned per share of stock since 1926.

Those who have followed the week-to-week figures of railroad carloadings and were acquainted with the serious operating difficulties due to the weather in various parts of the country are not surprised at the December losses shown both in gross revenue and in net income. These were quite general. There are only a few exceptions among the large systems in the east and west that have so far made their statements public. They reflect the falling off in merchandise traffic in the industrial sections of the United States, the smaller movement of coal and ore and restricted loading of agricultural products, lumber and iron and steel.

WEATHER ONE REASON
Losses in gross in December were not as serious as had been anticipated but the net returns made deep inroads into the profits that had been piled up in the first nine months of the year. Last month's net income of the roads so far reporting shows a decrease of between 15 and 18 per cent compared with the same period of 1928. There are also losses in some instances from the December 1927 level. It is expected that January will show unfavorable earnings as carloadings this month are well below those of last January and again the element of severe weather has been an expensive item in railroad operations.

Looking at the earnings for the longer period, and it is on the 12 months results that financial policies are established and not those of any particular quarterly period, the situation gives assurance to holders of railroad securities. The large majority of the carriers came through 1929 with profits well above their requirements on fixed interest obligations and on stocks and have added to their surplus account. Such systems as the Missouri Pacific, Wabash, Western Maryland, Wheeling & Lake Erie and Missouri-Kansas-Texas gained sufficiently in net over 1928 to justify demands that are being made on them by shareholders for a larger portion of current profits. It is not unlikely that, during the present calendar year Missouri Pacific, Wabash and Missouri-Kansas-Texas common will go on a dividend basis.

OTHER STRONG REPORTS
Conspicuously strong statements for the twelve months are those of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which had $16,000,000 more net last year than in the previous year; New Haven, with a 50 per cent gain in surplus; Southern Pacific, with an increase of nearly $5,000,000 in net operating income; Chesapeake & Ohio whose surplus after changes was $3,300,000 larger than in 1928; Great Northern with a net gain of $1,163,000 after a small gross decrease, and St. Louis-San Francisco whose surplus after all charges in the twelve months was roughly 20 per cent above that of 1928.

The Minneapolis & St. Louis, one of the two remaining important systems in receivership, made quite a sensational recovery during the year and ended it with a net operating income nearly 250 per cent above that in 1928. This reflected higher efficiency in operations as there has been but little change in its gross earnings in the last three years. The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific, whose net operating income in 1928 was more than double that in 1927, when the road was coming out of receivership, had a net loss of about 10 per cent.

The Baltimore & Ohio was one of the trunk line roads to suffer from the sudden decline in business in the last quarter of 1929, but it was able to end the year with an operating income approximately the same as that in 1928 in spite of the fact that for the twelve months total operating revenue was off $3,600,000. The reports of other large systems, including New York Central, Atchafalaya, Union Pacific and the Southern group of roads will shortly be available and will show about the same general conditions as those that have already been reviewed.

CHEESE FACTORY EARNED $80,342

Five Corners Association
Produced 352,351 Pounds
of Cheese

A total of 552,351.25 pounds of cheese was manufactured by the Five Corners Cheese factory, near Seymour, during 1929, according to the annual report of William Klitzke, secretary. The cheese brought a revenue of $14,234.28. In addition the sale of whey cream brought an additional $6,108.19, making a total of $20,342.47 earned by the factory last year.

Farmers delivered 3,845,773 pounds of milk with an average test of 3.48 per cent butterfat. This milk produced 134,122.55 pounds of butterfat.

The cost of making the cheese was $9,410.42 and patrons received $70,631.55. Secretary's fees were $205.55 and treasurer's fees, $67.55. It took 10.91 pounds of milk to make a pound of cheese and farmers received an average of $1.837 per hundred pounds of milk.

Officers elected by the group for the year are: William Klitzke, secretary; John Chute, treasurer; John Groth, Albert Rohm and William Klitzke, directors. Henry L. Mehlberg is the cheese maker.

Let The "High Scissors" Cut Away Excess Flesh

BY JAC AUMER
Two places where women accumulate rolls of fat that give an impression of fullness are across the back of the neck and across the diaphragm.

They are best eliminated by exercise. To reduce them by massage is pleasant because it is easier. But if you exercise, the muscles strengthen and the fat comes off and the body has firm flesh, contours that are young and attractive.

One of the best exercises to rid the figure of fat in the diaphragm and the shoulders, and at the same time treat the thighs and abdomen, is the "high scissors." It can be done only when one is somewhat limbered up by consistent exercise for several days. It should be done only a few times at first, in order not to tire you.

1. Lie flat on your back and stretch the body in a straight line. Then, balancing the body carefully, raise both legs to as near a vertical line as possible, raising up onto the shoulders.

2. Steady the body with your hands and begin the scissors. Keeping one leg vertical, kick the other down over the head until the toe touches the floor, keeping the knee stiff. This last point is important. If the knee bends, the exercise is not so efficacious.

3. Raise the leg until both are vertical; kick the other leg down

Carol Cotton shows how to do the "high scissors" exercise.

BOMB EXPLODES AT FILIPINO CENTER

Clubhouse Damaged by Blast but No Serious Injuries Result

Stockton, Calif. —(AP)— A bomb exploded on the porch of the Filipino Center, a clubhouse here, early today, tore out the front of the building, threw dozens of Filipinos out of their beds and precipitated confusion among a populace already made nervous by the recent race rioting in Central California cities.

The blast carried away the facade of the building and shattered windows of dwellings within a block's radius. No one, however, was reported seriously injured.

The bomb was hurled, apparently, from a speeding automobile. Charles Woodrow, a street car motorman, said he saw a large blue sedan speed by the club an instant before the blast occurred.

The center, a remodeled mansion, is in a poorer residential section in the southern part of the city. Police asserted the bombing was a case of anti-Filipino discrimination. In San Francisco, San Jose and Watsonville, where whites, who regard the islanders as the cause of much unemployment in the state, have subjected them to numerous attacks.

A Filipino shot to death, a white man stabbed and many Filipinos beaten have constituted the casualties so far. In Watsonville whites began aggressions because white women were employed as entertainers by a Filipino social club at Palm Beach, near there.

FRENCH MEDICS ENDORSE "OYSTERS A L'IODINE"

Paris —(AP)— Doctored food is highly approved by eminent French physicians but they give a new meaning to the word "doctored."

Oysters dosed with iodine are the first oysters with new treatment. Dr. Reno Loubatie of Bordeaux, in a paper presented to the Academy of Medicine by Professor Achard, recommends a daily half dozen "oysters a l'iodine" for two weeks as an ideal method of administering that drug.

Medicated oysters were produced by Dr. Loubatie by dosing the water in which the oysters grew. He found that they absorbed the medicine without any change in flavor and that the iodine spread through the human system in a satisfactory manner.

WET OFFICERS BIG DRY LAW PROBLEM

sonally dry. There has also been a noticeable change in the attitude of officials generally toward the prohibition law since Mr. Hoover came into office. Hardly anywhere at special functions given by government officials is there any sign of liquor.

The strongest factor in the whole prohibition controversy is public sentiment and it is beginning to dawn on officials here that the public generally is not going to take prohibition any more seriously than the officials whose duty it is to enforce the law. The mere fact that at this late date the attorney general is calling on prohibition personnel to abstain from drinking is regarded as a confession that some prohibition officials have in the past themselves been far from temperate.

Congress is in a mood to give the Hoover administration plenty of opportunity to develop an efficient prohibition personnel. Funds are not lacking and administrative changes will be made to conform to the wishes of the attorney general. And the drys in congress are getting ready to keep a minute check on what the department of justice does with the powers granted to it hereafter.

8 HONEY PRODUCERS FROM COUNTY JOIN NEW ASSOCIATION

Become Affiliated With Mountain States Producers' Association

BY W. F. WINSEY

Eight honey producers of Outagamie broke the record made in the present preliminary drive in 12 counties of Wisconsin by the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets for members of the Mountain States Honey Producers' association, a honey marketing cooperative.

The meeting at which the local honey producers became affiliated with the Mountain States cooperative was held in the city last Tuesday under the supervision of the Fox River Valley Beekeepers' association. James Gwinn, a honey marketing specialist of the Department of Markets was the principal speaker. The beekeepers who joined the cooperative are George Jacobson, president of the local association; Edward Hassinger, Jr., secretary and treasurer; Harry Ruppel, John Merritt, Cornelius Meyer, Jr., Guy L. Sherman, Gustave Gust and Anton Linkins. It is expected that these eight honey producers will be the nucleus of a much larger group that will include the majority of the 300 or more beekeepers of Outagamieco.

In signing the contracts the beekeepers agreed to sell no honey locally below the price established by the Mountain States association, and instead of dumping surplus honey on the market to ship it to a bonded warehouse of the association for storage and orderly marketing afterwards, according to Mr. Gwinn.

The officers of the local beekeepers' association and the county agent are to devise a program for the assembling and shipping of honey to the warehouse and later sales. The honey will be shipped in 60 pound cans, each can bearing the name and number of the producers. When honey is ready for shipment, the officers are to notify the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets and a car will be sent out on railway to pick up the honey at various points along the line to the Chicago warehouse.

"I am here in behalf of the new Mountain States honey producers' association," said Mr. Gwinn, "since that association has expressed a willingness to include Wisconsin in its membership. The Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets the college of agriculture and the Wisconsin Beekeepers' association have made a study of the constitution by-laws, contracts and plans of the Mountain States' association and have found them sane and sound."

STATE NEARER MARKET

"In the Mountain states the people in groups raise only one crop such as alfalfa or honey and when the price of that group goes wrong the group is down and out. The people there can produce honey much cheaper than it can be produced in Wisconsin but the fact that Wisconsin is nearer the big markets equals the production advantage."

"These honey producers started their marketing agency during the market slump of 1926 when they were harder hit by low prices for honey than we were and could not sell their crop at even 4 1-2 cents per pound."

"Assembling a great mass of documents and plans of work from all the most successful cooperatives of the United States, these honey producers, in their emergency, met at Larabee, and in two days and one night produced the constitution, by-laws and contracts of their present organization. The documents are as nearly buglar proof as human ingenuity can make them. They had 1,000 colonies of bees in their organization but instead of getting $2,500 to do business with they got only $1,500. Two of the officers went to the First National Bank of Boise, Idaho and raised an additional $1,000 of their personal notes."

"The first year in business the new association marketed 115 cases of honey, the second year 270 cases and it probably will market 500 cases the present year. The credit of the association in the First National Bank of Boise City is now $30,000. In the Intermediate Credit Bank of Seattle, $300,000, and in the Federal Farm Board $155,000. All these credits are used only in advancing money to producers for honey in storage. The year of organization the price of honey was 4 1-2 cents per pound and this year 3 1-2 cents per pound. The fact that Sheboygan consumers of honey are paying 3 1-2 cents per pound at grocery stores which is the same price that the producers are receiving according to the market reports of a Sheboygan paper is evidence that there should be some supervision of honey marketing in Wisconsin."

"The sole purpose of the Mountain States Honey Producers' association is to make a place for surplus honey, which is usually dumped on the market and causes the price to sag. The honey of Wisconsin producers will be pooled and will be kept separate from the honey of the balance of the twelve states in the association."

"The organization is going over big and it is going to sell the right here in Wisconsin. If it sells here in Wisconsin, it will fail because the honey producers do not support it. The Mountain States association has the car marks of a national organization. The First National Bank of Boise City is now $30,000. In the Intermediate Credit Bank of

Seattle, $300,000, and in the Federal Farm Board $155,000. All these credits are used only in advancing money to producers for honey in storage. "You can join the Mountain States association by signing these application blanks, paying $2 admission fee and ten cents for each of your colonies of bees. You are loaning the ten cents per colony you pay for working capital. At the end of five years, the money will be repaid with interest. The association also holds back 4 per cent of sales as working capital. This too is repaid with interest."

NAME LEADERS AND ASSISTANTS FOR 3 BOY SCOUT PATROLS

Youngsters Hope to Obtain Transportation to Golden Arch Ceremony

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Three patrol leaders and assistant leaders were appointed at a meeting of scouts Monday evening at Legion hall. Irvin Demming was chosen to head the first patrol with Robert Putnam as assistant; Claire Rickaby heads the second patrol and Robert Avery as assistant; while Robert Dayton and Harry Wells are the leader and assistant for the third patrol. This patrol organization will plan special events and in other ways look after the welfare of the individual groups. Two new boys, David Klatt and Forest Brown were received into membership.

Following the regular session a number of boys were initiated as scouts. In the duck paddle was prescribed for those who would neither sing nor recite poetry, and the evening was a hilarious one to the twenty-four boys.

Scout work, said C. H. Kellogg, scout master, is progressing in a highly satisfactory manner. The boys are working hard on their tests and when this work is over there will be an extensive program of other interests. Mr. Kellogg spoke with enthusiasm regarding the spirit of the boys. "They are the hardest working bunch and have the most energy of any group I have ever encountered," he said. "They run through work which usually takes twice as long to accomplish and there they are, the whole bunch, asking for more. Thus far there are no plodders."

The boys are hoping that enough cars can be secured for Friday evening to convey the boys to Appleton, where at Lawrence Memorial chapel the formal Golden Arch ceremony will be held. Though New London's organization is still too young to have more than one who will be presented at the court, the service is one which will be both inspirational and educational.

HEMMY TELLS STORY OF GOLD RUSH DAYS

New London Veteran Describes Expedition to Alaska

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Recalling his experiences as a part of a gold mining expedition to Alaska in 1898, Dr. C. D. Hemmy addressed Lions at their club luncheon on Tuesday. Dr. Hemmy was a member of a mining stock company organized in Milwaukee at the time of the Alaska gold rush and with a group of men sailed from a Pacific coast port on a dredge. They were towed by a boat carrying government supplies. He described the long trip by water which carried the men along the inland passage to Juneau, to Cross's sound and on to the Kodiak islands. The country about the Bering sea, now a part of the reindeer reserve is all familiar country, the speaker asserted. At St. Michael's Island the tow boat left the Milwaukee men and it was in this district that the doctor spent two years.

A number of the men remained in the north after their contract was ended and a few of them became successful as gold miners. Dr. Hemmy, however, was stricken with typhoid fever and was compelled to return to the states as soon as he was able to travel. He asserted that he did not make money, but that his adventures in what was at that time a little known country were well worth the time.

Great changes, he said, have come in the past quarter century to Alaska. Where in 1900 only about 1000 cases of salmon were shipped out annually the pack now amounts to about 67 million cases. The annual returns on fish and fur to Alaska are enormous.

His great problem was to discover a safe, natural, gentle way to keep his enfeebled body cleaned out. No ordinary laxative could be used. He was enduring intense cramps, fainting spells, and acute pain. "During one of these attacks," he writes, "a friend advised me to try Nujol because of its gentle, harmless, yet certain action. His explanation of Nujol's absorbing and cleaning process sounded like good common sense, so my wife got a bottle for me at once. That was thirteen years ago. I don't know how many bottles of Nujol I have used since then, but I do know I probably owe my life to it! Here's one man's story!

It is simply the most widely used and harmless means of giving your body the lubrication it needs, like any other machine. Tasteless and colorless as pure sparkling water, Nujol sweeps your body clean of the waste poisons, so you will feel bright, energetic, happy, full of vigor and pep.

So many millions of people have out happiness into their lives this easy way—why don't you? It costs but a few cents and it makes you feel like a million dollars. Get a bottle today at any drug store. You too can be well and happy. Prove it yourself!

EGG PRODUCTION, MARKETING GOES TOGETHER, CLAIM

Advise Housing of Chickens in Straw Loft Coops During Winter

BY W. F. WINSEY
The production and marketing of eggs should go hand in hand and be supplemental to each other if farm flocks are to pay for their feed and care.

The most successful producers of eggs are usually the most successful in marketing their product because they are, perhaps, the most interested in both ends of the game.

To produce eggs in abundance in winter when the prices are the highest, successful farm poultry women are housing their flocks in the straw loft chicken coop designed by the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, feeding the "Big Five" Wisconsin egg-producing ration, and are using as guides the bulletins on poultry issued by the College of Agriculture.

In summer when tourists are making Wisconsin a pleasure ground, these women put up signs on the roadside before their residences stating that strictly fresh eggs may be had here, and through this advertisement make large numbers of introductory sales, small but exceedingly effective.

Through these wareside sales of a dozen eggs or more, graded in color and size and packed in neat pasteboard crates, bearing the name and postoffice address of the farm these women obtain from one to twenty regular customers who pay prices ranging from ten to twenty cents per dozen above the regular market price for ungraded eggs of all sizes, ages and conditions.

Each purchaser of a dozen or more eggs at the roadside not only orders for his own use when he returns to his home but he induces his relatives and friends to do the same thing. The eggs ordered by a group are usually shipped to some central point and there distributed to the people who place the orders.

Operating in this manner, Mrs. William Heuer, Algoma, clears more money from 150 pullets above the cost of feed and care in the winter than her husband can possibly do from the product of ten cows.

Mrs. Heuer is only one of over 20 Kewaunee women who are very successful in producing eggs in winter and in selling their product at fancy prices. It is exceedingly interesting and instructive to see Mrs. Joe Misiva, Ellenville, each morning grading and packing eggs in neat crates for shipment to special customers in Milwaukee and Chicago and more distant cities, and hustling to get her shipments off on time. She says that her customers are willing to pay big prices for the best quality of eggs, and that she is always very careful to furnish them with her best product.

CLEARED $300 IN MONTH

During the month of November, Mrs. Peter Baeten, De Pere, cleared $300 above the cost of feed and care of her flock, on eggs that she sold to special, regular customers in Chicago and Green Bay, and in December $450. As the Baetens found out they could make more money from their flock by selling graded eggs to special customers, than they could possibly make from a herd of cows, they discontinued dairying and are now in the poultry business exclusively.

In Oconto-co, a dozen or more farm women are doing as well as their neighbors in Kewaunee, and Brown-co with small flocks in producing and marketing eggs. Among these successful women are Mrs. Alfred Olson and Mrs. John Mount. This winter Mrs. Mount is getting exceptional egg production and she has solved the problem of marketing to good advantage. Besides selling eggs to special customers Mrs. Olson makes a specialty of supplying eggs to hatcheries, beginning in the month of February. In the latter sales she gets ten cents per dozen above the market price. Her flock is housed in a building of the straw loft type and gets the "Big Five" Wisconsin ration. The flock is given the credit for supplying the funds for the late erection of a modern dairy barn, 33 by 75 feet.

County Agent H. R. Lathrop, several years ago, formed the habit of telling the women of Kewaunee-co who were complaining about getting no eggs in winter that if they would build straw loft chicken coops

Single Comb White Leghorn Best Producers Last Month

Madison—Six flocks of Single Comb White Leghorns placed at the top of the list of egg production records during the month of December in the class for flocks of more than 100 hens. But a flock of this well known Barred Rock breed led all others in the class for flocks of less than 100 birds.

Locally 429 of the snow white layers on Viola Lake farm in Burnett county produced an average of 2147 eggs in December. This is about nine eggs less than the number of days in the month.

With records nearly as high as that of the leading flock, five other Leghorn flocks ranked next in order. They are owned, in the order of production, by Ed Kronheim, Wood county; Richard C. Lash, Douglas; Allen Pohl, Waushara; Arno Seider, Sheboygan; and Mrs. John C. Simon, Langlade.

A flock of White Wyandottes broke the chain of leading places held by the Leghorn breed up to seventh place. This flock owned by William Andersen, Burnett county, was followed by John R. Gaudier, Wood; Philip Hornebeck, Sheboygan; William Thobert, Iron; B. W. Eke, Rusk; John A. Hanson, Burnett; Charles Hanne, Ashland; and Mrs. T. T. Hirsman, Rusk.

In the class for flocks of less than 100 hens, the record flock owners ranked in the following order: Mrs. Charles Iverson, Washington county; Mary Muehl, Iron; Black Beauty Poultry Farm, Ashland; Spencer B. Schreffer, Winnebago; Mrs. William Thielert, Iron; Louis F. Fink, Manitowish; Mrs. William A. Griffith, Winnebago; Mrs. Martin Skatoben, Ashland; George Steele, Iron; and August F. Luchow, Florence.

and care for an ordinary size farm flock, and find markets, according to his direction, they would make more clear money during the winter than their husbands could from a herd of ten cows. As the convincing part of the challenge, Lathrop declared if a herd beat a flock, he would pay the balance from his own pocket. Although, between 20 and 25 women took Lathrop at his word, no one of them has announced that a balance is due them from Lathrop. Special markets for eggs is a part of Lathrop's plan for making the farm flock pay in winter.

After inspecting a large number of farm flocks in Kewaunee, Brown, Outagamie and Oconto-co, the writer is convinced that any farm flock can be made to pay attractive dividends if sane methods of egg production and egg marketing go hand in hand and are made supplemental to each other.

CHICAGO TRYING TO DROP TITLE OF NOTORIOUS ACTOR

Lack of Funds Is Latest Pre-dicament in Which City Finds Itself

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press, Chicago—(P)—How to make of a well-established reputation as a notorious bad actor among the cities of the world is a matter of almost immediate concern to Chicago.

Though the past few years have cleared up one source of funds, only to find an outbreak in the quarter, until now the town has been able to find a way to make a name out of the papers. The actor is trying to stay in the World's Fair for three years and during most of her last year has been a that mothers do not concern with their ways and the actors headed for this nation in the case of the reputation for acting and love. Then public opinion came along and a word was said and the actor was forced to change a place to the quiet town.

WISCONSIN Mother's Plan is succeeding...

WHEN your child is headachy, bilious, feverish, half-sick, with no appetite or energy, nine times out of ten, just one thing is to blame: constipation! Cleanse the little digestive tract with California Fig Syrup and see how breath is sweetened, coated tongue cleared, eyes brightened. More than two doses are seldom necessary to drive away all signs of a clogged system; make a child happy. There isn't a child who doesn't love its rich, fruity flavor. Improved appetite, digestion and assimilation follow as use. A child's entire system is toned and strengthened.

Mrs. W. J. DeBoer, 212 Blüde St., Milwaukee, says: "Since I found out how good California Fig Syrup is, I have kept some in the house. It never fails to help my children. I give it at the first sign of upsets or colds. Their wonderful condition proves this a good plan." (Caution: The genuine always bears the name California.)

THE RICH, FRUITY LAXATIVE AND TONIC FOR CHILDREN

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young — to do this you must watch your liver and bowels — there's no need of having a sallow complexion — dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face — dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Oil Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 17c, 30c, 60c. adv.

the old common law—not geared to modern needs. Its whole political system is little more than a conglomerate that just grew, like Topsy, through the years.

Just so the outsider may appreciate Chicago's predicament, he should know that there are thirty-one governments operating in the city—all with taxing powers. In the metropolitan area of Chicago 699 separate taxing bodies and 417 governmental units exist. These 417 governments spend $350,000,000 annually and employ 60,000 persons. These various governments so overlap and duplicate that it is estimated that forty cents out of every dollar of tax money actually is wasted. At the same time the town is hamstrung by a community government which could sustain some rule. It can do almost nothing without sanction of the state legislature controlled by down-state Illinois, jealous of the big city.

Nearly all local civic groups recognize the need for a new state constitution and there is a permanent body prepared to work for convention call, but all recognize that in the present temper of public opinion this move would get almost no where. Speaking of the situation, the Chicago Tribune says editorially today: "Here there are the consequences of a democracy politically groggy and punch drunk from hitting its own chin. It took more demagoguery into its system than any electorate can absorb comfortably and consequently got a government which no community successfully could sustain some rule. It can do almost nothing without sanction of the state legislature controlled by down-state Illinois, jealous of the big city."

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR DIESEL ENGINE ON BID OF $56,800

Company Agrees to Replace Parts of Engine Purchased About a Year Ago

Menasha—After a discussion of more than four hours, during which the rules were suspended several times to make it possible for the different representatives to be heard, the common council at an adjourned meeting Tuesday evening awarded the contract for an additional Diesel engine to the McIntosh-Seymour corporation whose bid was $56,800. The contract for an "Exciter" was awarded to Ideal Electric & Manufacturing company for $3,104. The engine will be used in furnishing additional electricity at the municipal utility plant. The discussion involved the Diesel engine which the company installed more than a year ago. Reports were in circulation that it had been in operation very little since its installation and that it had been turned a piece of junk. The rumors were run down and were found to be groundless. Some of the aldermen were opposed to the purchase of an additional engine of that make on account of the rumors. J. H. Kuester, superintendent of the water and light, read from a record book the exact number of hours it has been in operation and also the number of hours it was down for repairs.

To Replace Parts

In presenting its bid for an additional engine the company offered to replace certain parts of the engine in question without expense to the city which would bring it up to date. The replacements would amount to approximately $10,000. The principal opposition offered to the McIntosh-Seymour engine was by Alderman Meier and Small. As to the latter it was a question almost entirely of hearsay. Alderman Meier was opposed to the engine with high speed. William Reimer, chief engineer of the plant, was called before the council and was the target for many questions by the aldermen. One of the reasons he favored the McIntosh-Seymour engine was because of the standardization of its parts.

Mr. Kuester contended that an additional engine is needed to take care of the rapidly increasing business. Manufacturers are constantly demanding more power and new home builders add additional lights. The city is planning to double its street lights, using two lamps to a pole which will greatly increase its consumption. When the bids were opened at the council meeting a week ago they were referred by Mayor W. E. Held to the committee of the whole which submitted its report just prior to adjournment. Alderman Meier and Small voted no.

NEW PATRONAGE TROUBLE ARISES

Mrs. W. F. Willis Objects to Statement in Racine Paper

Milwaukee—More wrinkles have appeared in the Wisconsin Republican committee just after the question of giving Mrs. Harry E. Thomas, Sheboygan, national committeewoman, a vote in the disposal of federal patronage had been "all ironed out."

The new discussion follows a statement in a Racine newspaper that Mrs. Thomas' "selection for committeewoman really was an accident."

Mrs. Thomas returned from Washington last Saturday after having talked with spokesmen of the party, and while she did not say that hereafter women voters of the state were to have a voice in affairs of patronage, she appeared contented with the settlement that had been reached. She said the differences had been ironed out.

MRS. WILLIS OFFENDED

The demand for equal voice for women in the national committee had been raised by Mrs. W. F. Willis of Milwaukee, treasurer of the state party, who had been working on a "deal" with bootlegger suspects and met the racketeers by prearranged plans.

Ginn said he and Dunning completed the deal, and that Dunning, who had entered the racketeers' car, flashed a pal of handcuffs and snapped them on the wrist of one of the men.

The bootleg suspect, Ginn said, swung his free hand knocked him (Ginn) into the street. Ginn said the man then jumped out and kicked him several times, leaped back in the car and informing Dunning that they were going to take him "for a ride," sped away. Ginn, also badly beaten, managed to spread the alarm.

All available police officers were called to hunt for the car, which authorities said was registered to James Williams of Seattle.

Dunning was taken to the City hospital where he was given emergency treatment. While scarcely able to talk, he said that one of two women in the car strangled him and that the three men in the machine all took turns beating him.

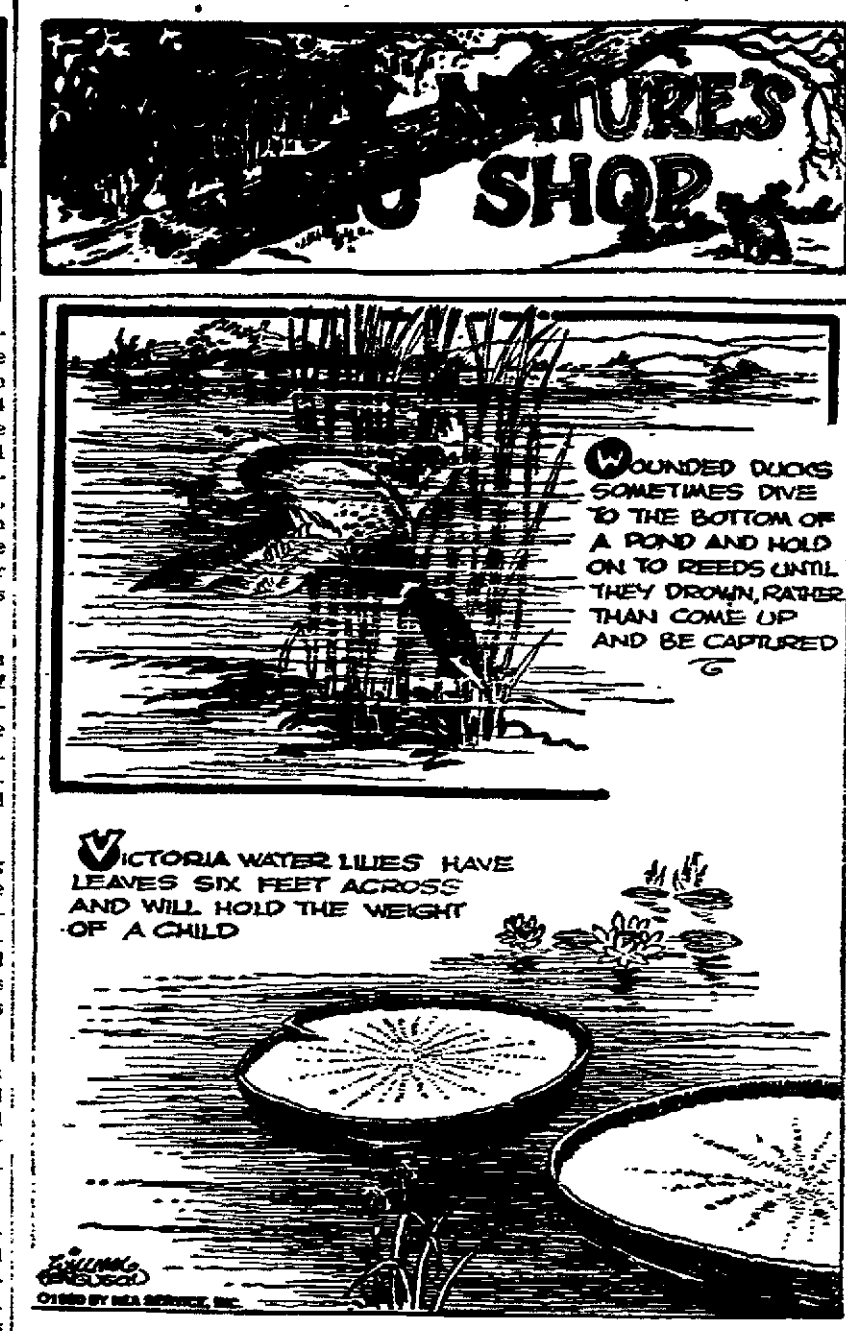

Dunning asserted that he snapped his revolver in their faces several times, but it missed fire. They merely laughed, he said, and continued the beating. He escaped when the car stalled temporarily at Duwamish. Duwamish is south of Seattle, on the Seattle-Tacoma highway.

Mrs. Willis said tonight her letter had not been merely her personal expression but had been the opinion of "a whole army" of women comprising the state and county organizations of which she is treasurer.

OBJECTS TO ACCIDENT TERM

In a statement issued tonight Mrs. Willis objects to the term "accident" as applied to the election of Mrs. Thomas to the national committee. Mrs. Willis, Senator Goodland had declared in his paper, "was trying to make noise enough for a whole army."

PRIEST NEVER QUILTS CHURCH CELL SINCE ENTRY 45 YEARS AGO

Constantinople—(AP)—In the thickest hurly-burly of the rue de Pera, main thoroughfare of Constantinople's crowded European and Levantine quarter one spot of quietness has been created and unquitted for almost a half century by one quiet person.

Forty-five years ago a French Catholic priest, Father Jean, entered a little cell in the basement of the Catholic church of St. Antoine on the Grande rue, and swore that he would never come out. He never has.

During these 45 years the increasing roar of what is now one of Europe's noisiest streets has drifted to his ears, but he has never seen the trolley, automobile, or motorcycle whose rumblings and tootings mingled with the shouts of street vendors and the shrill voices of Levantine pedestrians, break against the walls of his strange hermitage.

Before the allied occupation came to a close the French military authorities who were then here received the promise of the Turkish government that the old hermit would never be forced to leave his chosen place of seclusion. Food, clothing, books and newspapers are constantly left at the door of his cell by devout Catholics of Constantinople.

BOOZE RACKETEERS BEAT UP SEATTLE PROHIBITION AGENT

Officer Abducted by Gangsters After Attempt to Arrest Them Fails

Seattle—(AP)—A federal prohibition agent, D. Dunning, was abducted by a gang of alleged liquor racketeers, here early today and was found in the south end of the city an hour and a half later, badly beaten and wandering about in a daze.

Dunning was reported to have had one eye gouged out but an examination of the organ later showed that it was not as badly hurt as was first believed.

R. Ginn, another undercover federal agent who said he had been working with Dunning, reported to police that they had been working on a "deal" with bootlegger suspects and met the racketeers by prearranged plans.

Ginn said he and Dunning completed the deal, and that Dunning, who had entered the racketeers' car, flashed a pal of handcuffs and snapped them on the wrist of one of the men.

CALIFORNIA SEES COLORFUL BATTLE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Entrance of James Rolph, Jr., in Race Adds Zest to Campaign

BY BEN G. KLINE (Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press)

San Francisco—(C-P-A)—The virtually assured entrance of James Rolph, Jr., long time mayor of this city, into a four-cornered race for the Republican nomination for congress, gives promise that the campaign preceding the August primaries will be colorful, with a possibility of national issues being involved. Whoever wins the Republican nomination ordinarily gets elected in the golden state.

"Sunny Jim" hasn't waded into the campaign to the tops of the cowboy boots that together with an ever ready smile, ornament in buttonhole and perfection as official greeter of celebrities have helped to spread his fame beyond the cramped limits of his own peninsula city. Rather he has put one boot-clad foot into the political arena and expressed a willingness to have supporters push him on in.

"I find shortly encouragement and support from friends and fellow Californians," he announced, "I shall submit my name as a candidate."

CONTROLLER IN RACE

Already in the race are Controller Ray L. Riley of Southern California, campaigning on an economy and tax revision platform, and Burton Ellis, war veteran and former lieutenant governor, who has announced that during his brief term as Los Angeles district attorney he has broken the back of the Southern California underworld and restored confidence in the district attorney's office.

Governor C. C. Young has not announced his candidacy for re-election, but he has been touring the state recently pointing with pride to the fiscal accomplishments of his administration and there is little doubt in political circles that he will be a candidate.

Governor Young is a progressive, for Hiram Johnson, Republican, and it has been reported from inside the Riley camp that that candidate has only been awaiting Young's formal entry into the race before making an issue of Hoover versus Johnson Republicanism. Possibility of the Fitts campaign taking a similar tack is indicated in a paragraph of his announcement.

FITS WITH HOOVER

"I pledge to the national administration in its effort to deal with the economic and governmental problems of California my unwavering devotion and support....the people of California have a special reason to be proud of that administration."

Governor Young, Baron Ellis and Ray Riley are all political "crays," but "Jimmy" Rolph, reared in the liberal atmosphere of San Francisco, traditionally a town in which to have a good time, is generally considered on the other side of the prohibition fence. He is expected by his friends to run as a "wet" candidate, and in a year when "wet" leaders are making a concerted drive to overthrow the state prohibition enforcement law.

Though Rolph failed in a previous attempt to gain the Republican gubernatorial nomination, that he is a capable as well as colorful campaigner is attested by the fact that he has been elected mayor of San Francisco for five four-year terms.

JOB WENT BEGGING

London—There's one job in England went begging recently despite the unemployment situation. In widening a road, workmen came upon a stone which had to be removed. No one would attempt to remove the stone, however, for it bore this inscription: "Curse be the man that removeth this stone."

Women's National Defense Group Meets At Capital

Washington—(AP)—About 1,000 representatives of 50 women's organizations frankly dedicated to a policy of peace through preparedness here today for a meeting that will produce one of the first out-spoken group reactions in America to the naval conference in London.

The name of the group is the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense, and its chairman is Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart, president-elect of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The session comes virtually on the heels of Mrs. Carry Chapman Catt's conference on the Cause and Cure of War.

It will reassert, it was indicated by the vanguard of early arrivals, its demand for protection against war through adequate defense. The women expect to make specific reference to the London conference, once more demanding parity with every other nation—a parity which, they explain, they refer should come through reduction, but parity first and last.

To combat what it terms insidious pacifist propaganda in schools another avowed ideal of the group, and it will consider methods of "informing women" on the subject.

Mrs. William Sherman Walker of Seattle, the D. A. R.'s chairman of national defense, will speak, and so will Mrs. Donald MacCrae of Council Bluffs, Iowa, national president of the American Legion auxiliary; and Mrs. Virgil McCulloch of Lexington, Kentucky, president of the American War Mothers.

Secretary Hurley and his chief of staff, General Charles P. Summerall, as well as Senator Tydings of Maryland, will join in a program that will broadcast over a national radio hookup.

The first meeting will take place tonight.

PREMIER QUILTS; RIOTING FOLLOWS

He pledged his personal loyalty to King Alfonso and declared he welcomed the incoming government.

Of his successor he said: "The king entrusted formation of the new government to General Berenguer. I was very highly pleased with this designation for he is a man of great serenity of judgment, possessed of much discretion and deeply beloved throughout the country. There is no better man for the place."

General Berenguer's statement to the nation upon his accession contained the words:

"I shall form a cabinet composed mostly of civilians, none of whom, however, are as yet selected. For minister of finance, I shall choose a person with the qualifications of prudence and technical knowledge without exchanging interest. All my ministers except those at the head of the war and navy offices, will be civilians."

"From this moment until my government may end I swear allegiance to the constitution of 1876. There will soon be reorganization of the political parties, with legislation providing for general elections for senators and deputies in accordance with the laws which still stand for reestablishment of parliament."

Later the premier-designate announced that the duke of Alba, one of the foremost nobles of Spain, had accepted the portfolio of public education. The selection is likely to be popular. In 1925 the duke divided his estates among 400 tenants in order to get a democratic example.

Francisco Camba, a leading industrialist, and Juan Ventosa, a close associate of his, were mentioned as possible selections for the finance ministry. Leopoldo Mafos, former conservative minister who is legal advisor to the royal household was mentioned as possible minister of interior.

Streets and cafes were crowded throughout the night with people excitedly discussing the situation. Madrid newspapers freed of censorship after more than six years, found so much to say regarding the cabinet crisis that their regular editions were not sufficient. Extra editions at midnight handled the overflow of copy.

Nowhere outside of Madrid, did it seem the demonstrations had the serious respect of the police clash with students.

FIREMEN ENTER FIGHT

The clashes here did not get started until after midnight, when a crowd of students set fire to a newsstand on the Calle Alcala, one of the main streets, and overturned another. The fire department was called and great excitement prevailed while police and firemen combined forces to disperse the crowd.

As soon as demonstrations were quieted in one section they began in another, with police in many cases helpless to combat the turbulent mobs of people. They struck more fiercely, however, when the cry of "Long live the republic" was raised. All such banners were destroyed.

The events which led to resignation of General Primo de Rivera and the naming of a new premier, still were not clear today although a general idea could be gained of what had happened.

At 4 o'clock Sunday morning the dictator, excited by continued criticism of his regime, reports of defections in the army and navy, and the student unrest in Madrid, where the National university had been closed, told reporters he was asking 11 high army and navy officers to say if he should resign.

He conferred later with King Alfonso and was understood to have met criticism, tact perhaps, from both the crown and his colleagues. It being pointed out that he had in a sense gone over the king's head. In Spain as in other constitutional monarchies of Europe is the right of the king to name or supersede cabinet ministers recognized as supreme.

OFFICERS FAIL HIM

In answering the dictator's request for an expression of confidence or non-confidence some of the military figures to whom General Primo de Rivera had resorted replied that while they would always support any government designated by the crown they believed it inadvisable for the crown to designate a premier.

The report surprised the premier, who had counted upon the loyalty of the military heads, all of whom owed their posts to him.

He discussed the situation with his colleagues on the cabinet yesterday, and late in the afternoon left them to go to the palace and submit his resignation to King Alfonso. As he left the cabinet he made a remark about "using" the king.

A party which in Spain usually signifies impending resignation of the premier.

He left the royal palace at 10:15 p. m. (4:10 p. m. Appleton time) and said his resignation had been accepted effective as of 10:15 p. m. King Alfonso, it was understood, received the resignation an hour or so earlier, but requested the premier's wish not to reveal it until a successor had been designated.

High School Sextet Plays Night Hockey Game Here

WILL MEET EAST GREEN BAY SQUAD AT JONES PARK

City Team, the Blue Streaks, Scheduled to Battle Neenah Thursday

APPLETON high school hockey team will entertain at its first "starlight" party Wednesday evening when the Orange meets East Green Bay on the Jones park rink. The meeting will be the first between the two teams this season.

Night hockey in Appleton is a new innovation and is being tried in hopes that more fans will turn out to see the games. Heretofore the battles have been staged Saturday morning or afternoon and attendance has been small.

The Orange sextet has played two hockey games this season losing to Oshkosh last Saturday morning after defeating the Sawdust City team a week previous at Oshkosh.

Just what kind of a team the invading Blue Streaks is not known. Reports around high school are that the East Siders walloped some squad a few days ago by an overwhelming score and as a result Coach Joseph Shields has his men working hard for the coming encounter. The fact the highs do not play basketball this week has left the Orange coach with more time to instruct the hockey team.

Thursday evening there will be another hockey game on the Jones park rink. The battle will feature Appleton and Neenah teams, the former squad known as the Blue Streaks. Efforts have been underway for some time to arrange a game between the two but the night date is the only one they could agree on.

Appleton's contribution to the winter sport has hung up two victories in the last two weeks. The Neenah squad being victim in both cases. The first game was a 4 to 0 for the locals but last Sunday afternoon they hit their stride and galloped to a 13 and 0 win.

Neenah has been playing hockey for several weeks meeting all comers and in general has completed a "strong" schedule. Then Appleton last Sunday they played the Fond du Lac legion six and won 8 and 3. Boots Marquardt, wing was the big threat and he registered five goals.

In the third quarter the lead passed from one team to the other but in the fourth period the Shoes broke loose with a barrage of shots which gave them an eight point lead when the last minute ticked away.

BILLIARD VETERANS WILL TRY COMEBACK

Chicago—(AP)—George Butler Sutton, the Billiard player with the fancy goatee and flowing mustache who won the 132 ball game championship more than a decade ago, is attempting a comeback.

He has removed his goatee and mustache, too, as he wants to appear much younger than his 69 odd years.

"You must look younger these days if you hope to get work on billiard opponents," he explained. "It used to be, you had to look old."

Sutton has entered the national ball game tournament to be held next month in St. Louis.

NORTHWESTERN HOLDS SCHOLASTIC SPORT MEET

SYLVIA ROUEBUSH GETS 654 TOTAL IN SERIES AT ARCADE

What probably was a record score for women bowlers in Appleton and one that a good many men can shoot at without damaging, was hung up by Miss Sylvia Rouebush in a recent game on Arcade alleys.

Rolling against Paul Bowen, Miss Rouebush hit 232 in her first game, 222 in the second and an even 260 in the third for a total of 654. She counted eight strikes in one game and then opened the next one with four more, making 12 consecutive strikes. Had they been in one game they would have given her a perfect 300 game.

Bowling hit 189, 200 and 197 for a total of 386.

KIMBERLY REVAMPS LINEUPS FOR GAME WITH OCONTO FIVE

Loss of Dewey Williams Forces Several Changes in Club Team

KIMBERLY—The Kimberly club's basketball team will have an entirely new lineup to face Oconto here Friday night, since Dewey Williams a star guard will leave Wednesday for Seneca, Ill., to take a position there with the R. J. Wilson Construction company.

The club's basketball team will also see action on the front line in the game with Oconto, as Dewey Williams was a member of the team when it won the state amateur title.

New men who will see action are Matt Dupont a tall center and Gilbert Stevens a lanky guard. Stevens is expected to fill the vacancy at guard while Dupont will be tried at center to perfect the offense.

The club's team will appear in new uniforms Friday which will be another surprise for the local fans. The new suits are black with a red and black lettering.

Oconto is all set for another win having been turning in most of their games on the basis of the ledger. They are planning most hopes on three of their last year high school stars who were runners up in the state tournament. Besides these three players they boast several of the best stars in the northern part of the state, so a close and exciting game is looked for.

William Pickett will referee the main game which is scheduled at 8:30.

Preceding the main attraction the revamped Lefty's Aces will battle the Delta Sigma Tau Fraternity team of Lawrence college. This also promises to be a battle and the fans will be entertained while they wait for the big game. To date the Aces have only been defeated once and now with their new line up will go out to continue their winning ways. The game is scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

Sports Question Box

Question—Bases are full. Batter hits safely. The batted ball going into the hands of the first baseman who is standing on the base. The first baseman then throws the ball to the home plate and the catcher does not touch the runner who is coming home. Was this not a force play and did the catcher have to touch the runner who was on his way in from third?

Answer—It was not a force play. The moment that the ball was hit by the first baseman on the bag the batter was out and there cannot be a force play when the batter is put out first with runners on the bases.

Question—Who gets the money from the Tournament of Roses football game?

Answer—The two teams that play divide most of the proceeds.

Question—Has the catcher a right to block home plate if he does not have the ball in his possession?

Answer—He can never block a base unless he has the ball in his possession and if he does so there is a doubt about the runner having the right of way.

RAILWAY CAGERS ARE WALLOPED BY APPLETON QUINT

Miller Cords Hang Up Win Over Soo Line Team by 22 to 11 Score

IN the words of one of the fans the Soo Line basketball team, railway champs of someplace or something, "got off the main line" Tuesday evening when they stopped off in Appleton and as result took a tasty trimming from the Miller Cords 22 and 11. The boys from up Minneapolis way were just outclassed and had the Cords cured to battle down to the final gun they might have suffered a greater defeat.

Bearing in mind their opponents were supposed to be good, the Cords went to work as soon as the first whistle sounded and found things so much to their liking they had a 10 and 3 lead when the first period ended. Oconto Soo Line forward was the only man to register, accounting for a field goal and free throw.

The Cords' points had been computed by Eddie Kotal with two field goals and a free throw, Ashman with two field goals and three free shots, and Scheurle with one field goal.

Play in the second half was a bit confused, Appleton getting a total of nine points and the invaders eight. Both squads missed many baskets during the period, the Cords being content to let a couple of the reserve players carry the brunt of the attack. The big lead in the initial period was too much for the "Brakemen," however, and there was no question as to who would win.

Sunday the Cords were up at Marshfield but failed to play because of a mixup in dates. Friday evening they will invade Kohler to play Louis Loose and company on the Kohler floor.

The preliminary game of the evening was between the O. R. Kleehns of the Kaukauna Muldores. The invaders led to within two minutes of the end when the Kleehns stepped to the front and registered another win by a score of 9 and 7.

THIS DECISION MAKES CARNERA "HEAVY" CHAMP

NEW YORK—(AP)—Little John Risko, the Cleveland boxer, is the small and delicate to be exposed to the heavy punches of Victorio Campolo, Argentine gaucho, in New York state. So the New York state boxing commission, in solemn convocation, ruled yesterday in deciding to sanction the Risko-Campolo bout at Madison Square Garden had scheduled for Feb. 7.

The commission said that Risko, who has met him all and whipped most of them, would be no match for Campolo, who dropped a decision to Phil Scott in his last American start. Risko whipped Scott at Cleveland several years ago and has beaten among others, Otto von Porat, Ricardo Bertazzolo, Jack Sharkey, Jimmy Maceney, George Godfrey, Paulino Uzcudun and Jack Delaney.

The commission's decision came as a shock to sports writers. Risko, a rough and ready customer at all times, has been able to protect himself without outside help every time he has fought here. He has been particularly successful against the bigger heavyweights.

Campolo at 255 pounds would have about 30 pounds on Risko but that margin would not trouble him. Jack Dempsey did not find Joe Walcott huge bulk at Toledo a last year and have hundreds of other giant and near champions.

The more cautious among the commission's officials asked whether getting an opponent for the Carnera, the giant Italian, Campolo weighing 270 pounds, is in a class with himself so far as weight goes. The commission could not permit any of the current heavyweights to face Carnera and remain consistent. Campolo, possibly the biggest customer, Carnera himself, scarcely could be permitted to meet the Italian, as he would be outweighed by about 20 or 25 pounds. In fact, Carnera is so much shorter than Campolo that the commission hardly could allow him to get into the ring with the Venetian champion.

Without a doubt, the commission is about to exhaust the field. In fact, if the commission sticks to its guns, there is no field for Carnera. He will have to content himself with shadow boxing and wants to fight in New York state. That is, of course, provided the commission applies to him the same rule it pulled out of the hat for Risko.

APPLETON SKATERS TO ENTER GREEN BAY RACES

That Appleton skaters are to make an assault on records and honors at the North Eastern Wisconsin skating tournament at Green Bay Sunday is indicated by the fact nearly 20 of the speed stars have sought entry blanks for the meet. Two Appleton skaters have been sectional champions during the last four years and if they complete Sunday and either wins again he will receive permanent possession of the sectional cup. The two skaters are Clem Kutzinger and Percy Sharp. The Green Bay races are sponsored by the Green Bay Press Gazette.

LOMSKI AWARDED DECISION OVER JIMMY BRADDOCK

Error Made Night of Fight, 11 Days Ago, Is Corrected by Commission

CHICAGO—(AP)—The "eleventh-day decision" has joined the now famous "fourteen count" as Chicago's contributions to the oddities of the prize ring.

Last night, eleven days after Leo Lomski, the "Alberdeen Assassin," had exchanged round house rights and lefts for 10 rounds with James Braddock, the rugged light heavyweight from the "Sucker state," Illinois state athletic commission revealed that an error had been made by the referee and that Lomski was entitled to the decision instead of a draw.

Undue excitement and a technical error on the part of the referee, Davey Miller, was blamed for the mix-up by the commission. At the conclusion of the fight, one judge voted for Lomski, another for Braddock, while Miller called the match a draw with his deciding vote.

The decision was made by the hands of the fans, most of whom believed Lomski to be the winner by a wide margin even though he was floored once. The next day, Secretary Walter George of the commission examined the score sheets of the judges and referee, the commission's explanation said, and discovered that while the judges had totaled their points correctly, Referee Miller had made a mistake, his tally sheet showing four rounds for Lomski, two for Braddock and four even.

"Miller was out of the ring," added the commission's statement, "so nothing could be done until his return. As soon as he did return he inspected it, discovered his error and was anxious to correct it. Thus, the corrected card gives two votes for Lomski and one for Braddock. Hence, Lomski is hereby ruled the winner by a decision."

HENRIE WAGNER, a woman hater of the Boston Red Sox is so reluctant when it comes to public oratory, but he's a wonder at riding a team from his own bench. In the old days Wagner was one of the "Rough Riders," used to tear Ty Cobb to pieces on the diamond and a pitcher. He called upon H. C. Wagoner, who always said, "Let him do it." WOLVERINES, IRISH AND BEARS WIN IN OLDER BOY LEAGUE

Dope Runs True to Form as Tuesday Evening Games Are Played

THE Dope ran true to form Tuesday evening in the Older Boy basketball league of the Y. M. C. A. and the three teams considered leaders in the loop play each annexed victories.

Fourth ward Bears were the only team to suffer loss of prestige from the competition. They battled hard before being returned winners, a drive by the Red Streaks almost evening matters in the second period. The two teams featured in the first battle on the card, the Fourth warders having a big 12 and 2 edge at half time which the Red Streaks cut down when the boys from across the street scored in the last period, or used substitutes in the last period.

A camp by the name of Collins ran wild in the second game of the evening and enabled his team, the Irish, to register a 27 and 7 win over the Vocational school. The score at half time was 8 and 7. Collins' contribution to the scoring column was a 10 and 10 field goal which gave him the edge over the leaders.

Wolves triumphed off the Older Boys in the final battle by a 21 and 9 score. Half time saw the count at 16 and 4 for the Wolves as the Older Bears failed to get started. Deotter, Wolverine center led his team in scoring and scored the Older Boys the most points.

RADIO DUMPING

Appropriately enough — yet shamefully — the unloading of bankrupt and obsolete radio merchandise on an unsuspecting public, is described as "dumping."

Not a pleasant word, yet "dumping" covers the situation very well. When it appears in advertising, it reads something like this:

"A fortunate purchase at one-half price."

But they neglect to tell you that the set was not a success — that it was engineered wrong — that the company is bankrupt.

A radio is not purchased for a few days or a few months of use. It should be a purchase for the years to come. Therefore buy only the radio set that you will be proud to own. Buy a set that will never be an "orphan of the storm."

The Secret of Mohawk Pond

Chapter 27 IN THE BOG

SOMEWHAT tired in his brisk walk from where he had been talking to Sundown, Chase climbed the stairs of Fire Look-out Tower to the telephone.

He frowned when repeated attempts failed to raise anyone at either Yew Lodge or Echo farm, but tried the Evans farm again and Deborah answered. Obadiah she informed him had gone to Litchfield to attend a farmer's meeting.

The botanist hung up the receiver and then paused. Should he make another effort to locate Peggy Prescott? If he did, what could he tell her? That the exalted Sundown appeared to be on a rampage? That was no information to give a girl living alone with a negro servant, her nerves already keyed to the breaking point.

No, he decided he would return to Stone Tower, take his car and try to catch Obadiah at Litchfield. From a vantage point behind a clump of shrub oak, Jim watched the botanist leave the tower. Jim waited until he was out of sight, then climbed to the top of the 20-foot tower.

From the observation tower one could see for miles around. Taking the binoculars strung around his neck, Jim surveyed the wooded country. Even with their powerful lenses he was unable to catch sight of Yew Lodge. Only part of the pond was visible. Disappointed he dropped the glasses and grasped the telephone.

He gave the number for Yew Lodge and waited. A worried operator reported that she had been unable to obtain an answer; that no one had answered the dozen calls she had tried to complete.

Waiting no longer, Jim took the stairs two at a time to the bottom and hurried along the steep and rocky path down the mountainside. Totally unaware that her absence from Yew Lodge was concerning others, Peggy Prescott went along the path leading to East Summit, while Julia, the ever-faithful, plodded just behind her.

On reaching the forks in the paths, Peggy hesitated; the climb upward was certain to prove a tax on her ankle, carefully bandaged as it was, but the more level path led, as she knew, to Sundown's camp on Blind Man's Bluff.

She had given her word to Obadiah Evans not to go to the camp unaccompanied by one of the three men of her acquaintance in that part of the world. But the place drew her as a magnet.

Julia, not knowing the cause of her hesitancy, brushed past her. "Don't go that way, Julia."

Peggy's call stopped her maid as she was about to take the well-beaten track leading to Blind Man's Bluff. Julia halted, a somewhat mutinous pout on her lips.

"Ain't dat w'at is do mine trees we sees from Yew Lodge?" she asked. "I ain't never been on dat bluff."

"And we are not going there now," answered Peggy, with decision. "Let's keep to the woods. Come on, — and allowing no time for argument, she led the way due east, carefully skirting Sundown's camp."

It was not visible from where they were and Julia, annoyed that her suggestion had been overruled, sukked along behind. However, her fit of temper was of short duration and she stepped out more briskly as the ground became flatter. The woods were still about them when they reached the banks of West Branch Brook.

Keeping close to its bank, Peggy and Julia trudged along, heading north, the latter pausing every now and then to explain with joy when ever she recognized a familiar plant or evergreen.

"De flowers is all out down our way, Miss Peggy," she commended wistfully. "Tears like things is late up hyar."

"Surely; vegetation is about three or four weeks ahead of us at your home," agreed Peggy.

She looked at her walking boots, they were wet and she realized that the ground had gradually grown marshy.

The character of the trees about them had changed, but Julia, oblivious to all except the pitcher plants and the arctostaphylos which she glimpsed every now and then, kept steadily ahead.

"Dar, Miss Peggy," she cried in triumph. "see, one of de pitcher plants is in bloom! I'll get it for you," and Julia splashed her way onward.

A few rods more and she was abreast of the plant and she plunged forward up to her ankles. With the blossoms still beyond her reach, she waded further into the bog and clutched the stem, tearing it off.

Then she turned back, but the foot she tried to withdraw from the bog sank deeper into the treacherous swamp.

"Miss Peggy, oh, Miss Peggy! Help!"

Julia's piercing cry reached Peggy as she stood leaning against a tree trunk some distance away, resting her weight off the lame ankle. Startled, she sped in the direction the colored girl had taken.

"I'm stuck," wailed Julia, floundering about in her desperate desire to reach firm ground. "Don't come on nearer; jes' reach out an' lemme grab 'o' han'!"

Peggy did so and was nearly overbalanced.

"Wait," she cried, throwing herself on the ground and extending her hand. "There hold on, Julia—I'll pull you over here."

But Julia was the heavier of the two, weighing close to two hundred pounds, and Peggy's strength proved futile to drag her out of the bog.

"Don't struggle so," she panted, she herself was slipping, slipping toward Julia. "Pull yourself up by me, Julia. I can't—budge—you."

Frantically, gray with horror, Julia strove to do as she was advised, instead she sank slowly down, deeper and deeper.

"I see gone, Miss Peggy," she gasped. "Save yourself, and she released her grasp of Peggy's arm."

Peggy looked into the bog, black eyes their dog-like fidelity wrung a piteous cry from her, and forgetful of self she threw out both arms and clung to Julia's hand.

The impact carried her beyond the firmer ground; she felt her chest pressing into the bog—and her voice rose in one piercing shriek after another, to end in a gurgle as her head sank forward.

What is Julia's fate? The answer is given in tomorrow's installment.

LAW ENFORCEMENT IN BOSTON MIXED UP WITH POLITICS

Vigorous Policing Leaves City With Vice Problem Instead of Crime

EDITOR'S NOTE: (Boston's anti-prohibition demonstrations have centered public attention on that city as an illuminating example of the conflicting social forces of the law and the underworld. In the New England capital, the city manager, Theodore M. Wardell, has been given by the city council the task of enforcing the law, rather than a crime problem, and that day law enforcement is tangled up in a maze of politics.)

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

Boston—While there may have appeared a portent of revolution in the Boston anti-prohibition meeting at Faneuil hall, when the crowd trampled on cast guard recruiting posters, one cannot find in the "views and attitude of the politicians today that the incident touched off anything of new significance in the mounting booze uproar.

Prominent citizens let off a lot of steam and the crowd yelled lustily, but the hint of great historical import appears chiefly in the fact that this happened at Faneuil hall.

If your family belonged up here for a few generations, you call it "Fanneuil" hall, and if you live in Back Bay, you lift an eye-brow over these rump-heated doings and let it go at that.

LIQUOR AVAILABLE
"Let the politicians fight it out," said one of these Brahmins of the ancient caste today. "We find that it is not difficult to get liquor for civilized domestic purposes. So long as this is possible, we are not greatly concerned over this unseemly business."

With regard to the general law enforcement problem in Boston, the Wickham commission, in its continued research, might find this a laboratory of social forces accurate, reflecting the fundamentals of public behavior in large American cities. First of all, there is the unending hostility between city and state politicians, and the heterogeneous racial and economical elements which they represent.

Herbert A. Wilson, a canny Yankee Republican Methodist, presides as a state appointed police commissioner over law enforcement—business in this Celtic, and incidentally Democratic, metropolis.

ROOM FOR ARGUMENT
There are the makings of an argument in this situation alone, and it has arisen, to the point of fundity and boredom, times without number in the repeated rows over reappointment, the Boston clamor for home rule, and the charges that the Yankee legislators gerrymander the home town boys out of their districts, and continue their cold Calvinistic rule over this dionysian city. Stir into this some liberal ingredients of federal prohibition politics, and there is a situation which, somehow defies solution, by the simple Wickham formula of obedience to fundamental law.

Michael H. Crowley, a competent superintendent of police, serving under Commissioner Wilson, has done an exceptionally good job of policing the city. Believers in the theory that honest and vigorous policing is the answer to the crime problem may find an interesting case recorded here. Superintendent Crowley's special service squad, cruising in automobiles 24 hours a day, heavily armed, have ended big payroll robberies, cut down the homicide rate and made the streets safer than they used to be. He has found the citizens with him in this enforcement of law.

But this enforcement seems to have left Boston with a vice problem, rather than a crime problem. No hurry-up visitor to Boston could honestly conclude that prohibition is allied with and has stimulated crime, but the evidence that prohibition violations are enmeshed with vice in general is inescapable.

It is on its attack on vice that Boston enforcement gets lost in a maze of politics and general bewilderment and confusion.

Lay estimates are that there are about 3,000 saloons in Boston. Alert and snappy bell boys, hotel doormen and taxi drivers accommodate visitors with information about various illicit pastimes, from crap shooting to far more desperate and envious indulgence. Getting a drink in this town is just as painful and difficult as getting population statistics from the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

Superintendent Crowley looked a bit tired and frustrated.

Superintendent Crowley's story was the same as that of every police or prohibition official this correspondent has interviewed.

NEED MORE MEN

"Just give us enough men," he said, "and we could do the job." He told of the bootleggers' strongholds in office buildings and of the slow, wearisome business of getting evidence, and then the even slower and more difficult business of getting convictions.

While the beginnings of big-time racketeering have appeared in Boston, in the operations of Frank Marlowe, gangster slain in New York last July, it would appear that infractions of the penal code have been, for the most part, those which require a fly-swatter or a disinfectant, as a counter-irritant, rather than armed forces. They have been the petty crimes, the slow, wearisome business of getting evidence, and then the even slower and more difficult business of getting convictions.

Rhinelanders Satisfied With City Manager Plan

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Post-Crescent believes the people of Appleton will be interested in reading this reprint of an article prepared by Theodore M. Wardell, city manager of Rhineland, Wis., on the service given by managerial government in his city.)

BY THEODORE M. WARDWELL
City Manager of Rhineland
Effective government, to maintain its footing, must continually be projected favorably into the minds of those governed. Favorable impressions are those that, as a result of direct contact with the government, leave the citizen with the feeling that here is a government which is functioning efficiently and well. What are those direct contacts which create impressions, whether unfavorable or favorable? First of all taxes. This feature of all government concerns the most people, gives rise to most comment, is the source of most criticism—or most praise.

In ancient history, before civilization had reached the stage where centralized government was deemed necessary, each individual was a government unto himself. Taxes were no burden to him as he only gave what was immediately returned to him—perhaps in some different form, but returned nevertheless. The inability of many present day citizens to see how their tax is returned to them, undoubtedly gives rise to the age old prejudice and distaste against the annual visit to the tax collector.

FIXED RESPONSIBILITY BEST
However, as time advances, where these results obtained at the price of extreme economy, curtailment of public service and sacrifice of good government? I think not. Over $20,000 worth of new equipment has been purchased for the street construction of a city, besides the construction of a new heated and lighted garage, costing about $3,000. A new 1,000 gallon pumper has been added to the fire department, besides much additional equipment. Streets have been graveled and maintained at a high standard. Snow removal has been efficient and effective to a high degree. In addition, over 10,000 feet of new water mains and 9,000 feet of sewers were installed. All this was accomplished without any bonds issues of any kind. Other departmental activities such as police, fire, library, health, parks and cemetery are giving the service

Rhinelanders adopted the city manager form of government in April, 1926. The first manager, Mr. Garret, took charge in June of the same year. Quoting from his first monthly report submitted on July 1, "Lack of finances is our greatest obstacle to progress. The past administrations did not avail themselves of the opportunity to levy taxes sufficient to pay the necessary operating expenses of the city until last year. Consequently it became necessary to issue short term notes for $17,500 to cover a street paving job of the previous year, to use $50,000 from the funds secured by the sale of school construction bonds for current city expenses." During the month of August $26,120 in advance taxes was collected from several firms to help on current city expenses, and in addition to the above $122,500 was borrowed on short term notes to carry the city along. The total of the above items, $216,200, represents an accumulated current debt at which the public rebelled and felt that only a change of government would correct."

PAYING OFF OLD DEBTS
What is the condition of the city today? The accumulated debt of today? The accumulated debt of today?

BLACK FINGERNAIL FAD IS SPREADING

Not Many Women, However, Are Expected to Take Up Idea

BY AILEEN LAMONT
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
New York—(CPA)—The fad for black fingernails, the entire nail of varnished ebony and highly polished, is expanding. Not many women have taken up the idea, and not many women ever will, but those who must be different are now also varnishing their nails in shades to match their costumes. Of course, the varnish is difficult to remove and soaks the nails, but so la, la, anyway.

Ever since the French girl married the east Indian Maharajah and wore a wedding gown of her husband's racing colors, smart English women have been thinking up a way to include their own favorite racing colors in the sports ensemble. Several of these sportswomen are waiting in their sturdy sports breeches a shoe-lace in the racing colors. They are in a rather large bow, it is rather good, especially if matched with a scarf, or a fabric boutonniere.

The tower of London has four main towers, all of them slanting in the ambition of the fashionists. London women just now to recognize any one of them. She achieves this by an evening frock which trails the floor all round and a cape trailing from her shoulders in back. These lines give her slenderness and height, and she achieves even more height by placing the ribbon belt of the frock up near her armpits, allowing long, height-giving ends to fall to the hem of her gown.

which the community has a right to expect.

No government can claim to be perfect, but the results obtained in this community as outlined above surely merit the support of a right thinking citizen.

CONSERVATION HEAD AGAINST ICE FISHING

Madison — (AP) — Catching fish through ice is like killing the goose that laid the golden egg in the opinion of William Mauthe, chairman of the conservation commission, who today made a plea for cooperation for the propagation of fish.

"If Wisconsin is to regain her high position as a fisherman's paradise, state agencies and the people in general must cooperate not only in the propagation and distribution of fish, but also in the proper protection of the fish after they have been planted," Mr. Mauthe said.

"If the fishing is to increase, the propagation and warden protection will have to continue, and other means of increasing the stock will have to be started. The last local catch made an admirable beginning in this when it passed the ice fishing law which prohibits fishing through the ice after January 1 in most of the waters of the state."

"Catching fish through the ice is in most respects similar to killing the goose that laid the golden egg, as the fish taken through the ice after January 1 are full of spawn and are ready to lay their eggs as soon as the ice goes out in the early spring. Many fishermen have been caught at the great abundance of female fish caught through the ice. This is because the females, being full of spawn, are hungry and will bite at anything to get food enough to develop the thousands of eggs they are carrying."

"No waters in the state can be fished all the year around and be expected to keep up with the demand that is made on them by a constantly increased number of fishermen."

Stamboul, Turkey—So many illicit douches have been found by purchasers of Turkish cigarettes that the director of the government monopoly has ordered that any woman employee found putting a note into a box in the government factories here shall be fired on the spot.

RESUME WORK ON NEW TELEPHONE BUILDING

Workers have resumed construction work on the new addition to the Wisconsin Telephone Co. building. Work on the first floor is progressing rapidly. DEPUTY BRIDE

London—A west London registrar was recently faced with a marriage problem. A young man came into the office and when the license was procured it was revealed that he and his companion were not married, but her sister, whom he had in sight to serve as "proxy." His fiancée he explained, was ill, and since they wanted to be married within a short time, he had asked the sister to serve as proxy. The marriage was not performed.

Financial And Market News

DEMAND FOR STOCKS BROADENS AND MARKET CONTINUES UPWARD

Active Issues Show Gains Ranging from One to 10 Points

BY STANLEY W. PRENSOIL
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York (AP)—A broadening demand for stocks was noted in today's stock market, with gains in the active issues running from 1 to nearly 10 points. A few soft spots cropped out from time to time but there was a marked absence of the "bear" attacks which featured the sessions earlier in the year. Trading was moderately heavy in volume, with pools again active in a wide assortment of issues.

Except for the report of a further falling off in freight car loadings, the day's business news was cheerful in an earnings report by the United States Steel corporation after the close of yesterday's market was followed today by the Iron Age Weekly summary which stated that "the rapid recovery of the steel industry has been a surprise to consumers and producers alike." At Chicago the mills are reported to be operating at 90 per cent of capacity, with the industry generally around 75 per cent.

U. S. Steel common was marked up 4 points to a new high of 29 1/2, the current recovery of the high reached after the November break in prices and 12 points above the price at which stock recently was offered to employees under the profit payment plan. Vanadium Steel also advanced 4 points with smaller gains for most of the other independents.

J. I. Case scored 10 points in response to reports of a brisk inquiry for farm implements. International Harvester advanced 4 points. Columbia Carbon was run up 9 1/4 points to 192 3/4 and United States Steel common advanced 1 1/2 in anticipation of a resumption of dividends at today's meeting.

Resumption of dividends by Colorado Fuel after a lapse of nine years was followed by a moderate advance in that issue. Liggett and Myers issues also responded to the declaration of extra dividends on the offering of stock subscription "rights."

Anchor Cap Preferred, Brooklyn & Queens Preferred, Underwood Elliott Fisher, Colgate, American Tobacco B, Worthington Pump, Mullins Body, National Lead, Warren Bros. and United Carbide sold 4 to 6 points higher.

Onis Elevator broke 3 points, International Combustion Preferred 5 and Manati Sugar Preferred lost 4 points of its 24 point gain of yesterday.

In the final hour U. S. Steel crossed 152 when it was up more than 5 points. Large amounts of some of the popular shares were bought, one block of 12,000 shares of International Nickel changing hands at 35. J. I. Case extended its rise to more than 16 points, while Jersey Central was up nearly 10. New York Central, Atlantic Gulf & West Indies, Du Pont and the Liggett & Myers issues rose 3 to 4 points. Auburn Auto was up 3. The close was strong. Sales approximated 2,200,000 shares.

NORTHERN PACIFIC EARNINGS DECREASE

St. Paul (AP)—Net operating income of the Northern Pacific railway for the year 1929 was $5,653,283 less than for 1928. It is shown by the December earnings statement of the company, made public today.

An extra dividend of $5,000,000, however, received by the Northern Pacific from its subsidiary, the North Western Improvement company, practically made up the difference. Earnings for 1929 are estimated at between $5,500 and $5,800 a share. In 1928 the earnings were $5.52 a share.

Gross operating revenue for 1929 was $66,522,000, as compared with $61,927,221 in 1928. Net operating income for 1929 was $2,413,341 compared with $2,555,572 in 1928.

As a result of the extra dividend from the Northwestern Improvement company, the road shows a surplus after dividends of about $9,400,000, or about $5,750,000 in excess of last year.

According to a statement by Charles Donnelly, president, the decrease in 1929 earnings was due almost entirely to the small grain crop and a decrease in the movement of forest products.

HOGS AGAIN STRONG AS SHIPMENTS DROP

Heavy Run of Monday Is Offset by Light Receipts Today

Chicago (AP)—The advantage of the heavy volume of hogs received here on Monday was cancelled by the slim run of 22,000 offered today of this number 2,000 was killed for packing houses and 8,000 state hogs were on hand. Shippers and local butchers bought good light hogs on a steady to strong basis, paying 10.50 for 155 lb. animals and 10.00 to 10.15 for heavy butchers.

Livine trade had a slow start, but conditions warranted a firm market on the desirable kinds of steers. Light stock of good to choice finish met with brisk demand, but this class comprised only a small part of the run, estimated officially at 5,000. About 2,500 yearlings arrived and inquired for them fell off so that they were neglected in the early market.

Eleven markets reporting 44,000 hams, had 22 less than arrived a week ago, and official offerings of 11,000 were nearly 7,000 short of last Wednesday's run. The market got under way slowly, with small operators taking fat lambs at unchanged figures.

TAFT STILL JOVIAL AS HE BATTLES TO REGAIN HIS HEALTH

Chief Justice of United States Has Innumerable Friends

BY L. A. BROPHY

Washington—(AP)—With the same cheerful attitude that has ruled his life, William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States, is fighting to regain a working portion of the abundant health that carried him through a public career without parallel.

Mr. Taft was perceptibly ill when he entered a hospital here for treatment before going to Asheville, N. C., where he now is making apparent progress.

He was well enough, however, to walk to the receiving room of the hospital, and he said to the attendant, with a chuckle:

"Well, young lady, have you a room for me?"

Mr. Taft has been a part of Washington life so long that the capital's concern over his recent acute illness was almost a tangible thing.

He was just 32 when he came in 1890 as solicitor general of the United States. In the years up to and including his tenure of the White House he was a permanent and semi-permanent Washingtonian, until in 1921 he moved to the capital as chief justice of the United States, under appointment of President Harding.

It has only been in recent years that illness has laid a detaining hand on the Taft activity. The chief justice was forced to give up his almost daily walk to the supreme court.

Pedestrians who had come to know and venerate the man striding along with a smile of common companionship that encompassed the great, the near great and the unobtrusive, felt his absence keenly.

When the chief justice was too ill to journey at all to court, the capital felt another loss, for then it was denied an amiable glimpse of him riding up Pennsylvania avenue in the morning and down in the late afternoon.

The Taft chuckle and the Taft cheer make friends and admirers a legion hard to count.

It was as a walker in Washington—it is two miles from the Taft home to the supreme court—that his humanness best became publicly known. He never became impatient with the curious who spoke to him, and he never failed to salute a friend.

U. W. MAN TO LECTURE AT GENEVA UNIVERSITY

Madison—(AP)—The pioneer teacher in the United States to give a course on the World Court will become a lecturer at the university established at the court's seat next month.

He is professor Pitman B. Potter, University of Wisconsin political science authority. He is credited with giving the first university course dealing exclusively with the workings of the world court.

Dr. Potter is to become a staff member of the Institute Universitari de Haute Etudes at Geneva, Switzerland, while he has a semester leave of absence from here. He begins lectures Feb. 15 at the school which is a post graduate university of international studies. The institute cooperates with the University of Geneva.

Dr. Potter will lecture on "Fundamental Problems of International Organization" and also will conduct a seminar on "Selected Topics and the League of Nations."

A graduate of Harvard, Dr. Potter has taught at his alma mater, Yale, Illinois and Wisconsin. He is author of numerous books on political science.

ed down a Washington street, was hailed by Mr. Taft with:

"Hello there! How are you? Don't you remember? I met you 15 years ago in Rome."

There is the classic story of the chief justice and a painter. The workman, on a scaffold, failed to recognize the stout pedestrian near his ladder as he dropped a brush.

"Hand it to me, will you, bud?" he queried.

"Certainly," responded the chief justice of the United States.

HULL WOULD MAKE FARM BOARD HELP BADGER DAIRYMEN

Black River Falls Representative Wants Action, Not Words

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent)

Washington — Wisconsin dairy farmers can take what cheer they can find out of the Department of Agriculture's assurance that things are not as bad as they seem.

In its summary of the agricultural outlook made public today by the United States Department of Agriculture, is the following statement on the dairy industry:

"The underlying dairy situation is not as bad as would appear from present butter prices, but unless dairy herds are closely culled and more heifers sent to slaughter there will be a further increase in the size of dairy herds in 1931 and 1932."

This may sound to the dairy farmer a little like the insistence of the bankers and business men that the country's "business is fundamentally sound" right in the same breath with the refusal of credit for the expansion of business and the employment of labor.

Meanwhile, Representative Merlin Hull of Black River Falls wants something more than cheering words about fundamental soundness in the dairy industry. He wants the Wisconsin delegation in congress to do something to make the Federal Farm Board help the Wisconsin dairy industry and help it promptly.

The farm board has authorized loans of $450,000 to the National Cheese Federation and has approved the application of the Land O' Lakes Inc., of Minneapolis, Minn., for a loan of $1,000,000 to assist it in the effective marketing of dairy products it handles. Some Wisconsin creameries are among the 470 co-operative creameries belonging to this sales organization which handles approximately 100,000,000 pounds of butter.

The National Cheese Producers' Federation handles this year about 50,000,000 pounds of cheese, 70 per cent of all the cheese manufactured in the United States coming from Wisconsin. The federation will handle about two-thirds of all the domestic Swiss cheese made in the United States and about 15 per cent of the American-type cheese.

Mid-Year Graduation Is Opposed By Educators

A plan of midyear graduation for Appleton high school students is looked upon with disfavor by Superintendent B. J. Rohan, and Principal H. H. Heible.

"Midyear graduation," said Mr. Rohan, "puts everything out of step. A student who graduates in January finds it difficult to enter college in the middle of the year, particularly because the selection of courses at that time is poor, and consequently has to either find a job or be idle until fall. The basic reason for midyear promotions seems to be to rush particularly bright pupils through their student years, with the result that they finish college much earlier than the ordinary students. This often results in social mal-adjustment, because the boy or girl who graduates around 19 or 20 has not had a chance to develop his judgment."

"In my opinion it is better to keep the precocious child in the class in which he started, and direct his leisure time into channels that will serve to broaden his education. Reaching out sideways for additional information will do the child more good than promoting him to a higher class."

"Appleton has never had midyear graduation, chiefly because it has been wise enough to avoid it."

"As a general thing colleges shy away from the midyear graduation, and many high schools that have been practicing it are seeking to abolish it. Sheboygan will do away with its midyear graduation this year, and the sentiment in Green Bay and Oshkosh seems to be against the idea. In larger cities where there are thousands of students the plan seems somewhat more justified, but in Appleton it seems wise to try to encourage students who are a half year ahead or behind to extend their last few courses over an entire year."

PREPARE REPORT ON COMMERCIAL FISHING

Madison—(AP)—A comprehensive report on the conditions of commercial fishing in Wisconsin is expected to be ready for the 1931 legislature under the plan for a cooperative fisheries investigation advocated by the conservation commission.

The investigation, as proposed by the commission at a recent meeting, will extend from June 1 to December 1, 1930 and will be in charge of Dr. John Van Oosten of the United States Department of Fisheries.

The experiment will extend along the west shore of Lake Michigan from Kenosha north to some Michigan port. It will be financed by the conservation commissions of Wisconsin and Michigan, the United States Bureau of Fisheries and fish net companies. The cost of the experiment will approximate $25,000.

Investigators will determine the size of net meshes for chub net fishing and the effects of various sized meshes on immature lake trout and immature chub population. They will also endeavor to determine the effect of the method of stringing on the taking of trout and to correlate depths, temperatures, bottom materials and chemical condition of water with the distribution of trout and chubs.
